GROUND OF ACTION.

Accompanying the return of the indictments was an explanatory report setting forth the grounds upon which the jurors based their action. The shortage, they declare, they found due "primarily and principally to the recent great strike in the anthracite coal fields."

Bituminous coal could not be mined and stored in sufficient quantities to supply the deficiency caused by the restricted output from the anthracite mines, first, because the capacity of the mines could not be increased so materially on short notice, and, secondly, because the storing of bituminous coal during the summer months is inexpedient owing to the danger of deterioration through slacking and of destruction by fire through spontaneous combustion.

In Chicago, the report continues, the amount of anthracite coal received in 1902 was 1,307,637 tons less than in 1901, to offset which there was an increase of only 798,721 tons of bituminous coal. The difficulty experienced by the railroads in handling the large quantity required for daily supplies, owing to the failure to store bituminous during the summer, also they found constituted one of the causes of the famine.

The railroads they believed to be doing all in their power to move the coal promptly to market and the accumulation of coal-laden cars in railroad yards does not exist to an unusual extent at this time of the year. "The jury finds no convincing evidence," the report reads, "of a deliberate detention of cars for the purpose of intensifying the difficulties of the situation."

FIND CONSPIRACIES.

While not finding the present condition due to or appreciably influenced by any conspiracy in restraint of trade, and while convinced that the laws of supply and demand sufficiently accounts for the high prices prevailing, the jury found that there existed in the city of Chicago and in Illinois and in neighboring states "certain combinations which it deems to be conspiracies or combinations in restraint of trade within the meaning of the statutes," as follows:

The Northern Illinois Soft Coal association, the Retail Coal Dealers Association of Illinois and Wisconsin, a certain combination of Indiana coal operators with the Crescent Coal and Mining company. While not differing in character and scope from similar combinations in other lines of business the jurors deemed it their duty to present the foregoing indictments. Other associations of operators and coal dealers were found to exist and to have more or less effect in the fixing of prices and restricting competition, but against whom the evidence did not warrant action. They are the Chicago Coal exchange and the Chicago Track Dealers' association.

STATE LICENSE EXAMINATION.

The examinations of teachers for professional licenses will be held the last Saturday in February in this city and in eight other cities of the state. Applicants for state license may take the examination at any of the places named on the last Saturday in April and diploma examinations may be taken the third Saturday in the months of March, April and May.

COURT DECIDES IN FAVOR OF MOTHER

Fiancee of Man Killed on a Railway Does Not Get Insurance.

In the case of Mary Betz against the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, the action being to recover on a life insurance policy, the superior court today found in favor of the plaintiff. Mary Betz is the mother of a man who was killed on the Northwestern road while discharging his duties as a fireman and while the mother and other interested parties live at Auburn, the accident happened at Chicago. After the death a girl named Lillian Benjamin laid claim to the insurance money on the ground that she was the affianced of the deceased and that she had nursed him and had been his helpmeet for many days before his death occurred and, therefore, should be entitled to the benefits of the insurance, inasmuch as the deceased had told her that he had transferred his insurance to her and that she had for months paid his dues to the order of Locomotive firemen out of her own earnings. Suit was originally brought in DeKalb county by Mrs. Betz and her suit was contested by cross-complaints filed by Miss Benjamin. Then came the wrangle and the case was brought to this county on a change of venue. Meantime the order of Locomotive Firemen was not trying to evade the payment of the claim, but wanted to pay it to the proper parties and accordingly paid the full amount of the claim to the DeKalb circuit court to be disposed of there. When the case was venued the money was paid over to the Allen county clerk, where it now is. The order of the court today was that the money should be paid to the plaintiff Betz, but on demurrers and kindred motions, all of which were overruled, the order remained, but the attorneys were given fifteen days to file their bill of exceptions and bond; if the papers filed in fifteen days fail to meet the approval of the court the money on deposit will be paid over to the mother of the deceased.

IS NOW IN OKLAHOMA.

Charles Jones, for fourteen years deputy recorder of Allen county and during the last seventeen years engaged in real estate and abstract business in Chicago and Duluth, is now located at Guthrie, Oklahoma. Mr. Jones was in Fort Wayne a few weeks ago renewing old acquaintances and left for Guthrie about the first of the present year to locate. Today his father, Geo. W. Jones, received a letter from him saying that he had opened an office for himself, had already commenced business and had the finest kinds of prospects for success in his western home.

COURT NOTES.

Emmett Martin has commenced suit against Elizabeth Klingerlberger et al. on a mechanic's lien for $75.

Thomas Brockerman recovered $39 from William Kettler et al. on a mechanic's lien.

In the separate cases of Oliver Parker and Raymond Gardner against the Fort Wayne Traction company for damages, affidavits were presented by the defendants' attorneys and the cases were venued to Whitley county.

Charles W. Thurman was today given a decree to quiet title in his suit against Morris Robinson et al. R. B. Dreibelbiss was appointed commissioner.

AS SPECIAL JUDGE.

Judge O'Rourke is sitting in the superior court as special judge to hear the evidence in the rather much ventilated case of Brudi brothers against T. E. Ellison and the Mondamin Meadows company. The superior court jury came in this morning and is hearing the testimony.

GONZALES DIES OF BULLET WOUNDS

Victim of Tillman's Revolver Succumbs After a Brave Battle for Life.

HEROIC TREATMENT FAILS

The Murderer Hears the News of His Victim's Death With Emotion.

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 19.—Editor N. G. Gonzales, who was shot by Lieutenant Governor Tillman, died at 1 p. m. today after battling almost four days for his life. Mrs. Gonzales was with her husband when death came.

When the bulletin was posted announcing his death the crowds which have been about the bulletin boards almost constantly since the tragedy increased rapidly and all phases and detatils of the tragedy were discussed.

In his cell where he has been confined since the shooting, Lieutenant Governor Tillman heard the news with visible emotion. Sorrow was generally expressed.

It was evident last night that the crisis had arrived. Mr. Gonzales as he became more nervous was subjected to vomiting and generally grew worse. He continued to lose ground and as early as 3 o'clock this morning hope was practically abandoned. The last heroic treatment resorted to was the use of formaline. One-fifth of a grain was injected into the veins in the hope of stopping blood poisoning. At 7 a. m. all of the patient's relatives who were not at the hospital were summoned.

His wife, two brothers and a sister besides members of his editorial staff on the State responded.

HOPE HAD RISEN.

Favorable symptoms were visible yesterday and up to midnight it was reported that Mr. Gonzales was holding his own well.

Sunday there was an indication of improvement in the wounds in the intestines. The obstruction had been removed and the pus cavities kept open. It was even thought he had passed the danger of peritonitis.

At 1:30 last night, however, it was noticed that his condition had undergone a decided change and it was reported that the crisis had arrived. Mr. Gonzales became exceedingly nervous and gradually grew weaker till the end came.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The services will be at Trinity church and will be presided over by Bishop Capers, of Yorkville, S. C. The body of Mr. Gonzales has been taken in charge by Coroner Green.

It is announced that death was due to septic poisoning from the wound in the liver. After the last examination at 11 o'clock it was declared that there was no hope.

A solution of formaldehyde was injected at 10:30, but there was no improvement in condition. Soon after the physicians made an injection of one-fiftieth of a grain of formalin direct into the veins in the hope of preventing blood poisoning, but this also proved futile. Gonzales was unconscious most of the morning. The city is quiet except for the great crowds around the bulletin board discussing the details of the tragedy.

X-RAY USED TO CURE CANCER.

Boston, Jan. 19.—Faces scarred with surface cancers have been healed perfectly, and skin diseases from which the patients had suffered in many instances all their lives have been and are being cured at the Boston city hospital by the use of the X-rays. Some of the cancerous growths completely cured had been previously operated upon with the knife unsuccessfully. The effect of the X-rays seems to be to soften the surface cancer, and repeated application of the X-ray light heals them perfectly. Among the skin diseases healed are eczema and allied affections. Investigations are going on, and the doctors hope to cure internal cancers.

WILL BUILD BOWLING ALLEYS.

The new Anthony Wayne club has determined to add a first-class bowling alley to its club building, and plans are now being prepared for the improvement. It is expected that ground adjacent to the building will be leased for the alleys, and figures are being secured for a series of three alleys of regulation type. The alleys will be connected by an archway to the main club building.

MEETINGS WILL CONTINUE.

Revival services at Bethany Presbyterian church will continue this week, Evangelist George H. Williams, of Wheaton, Ill., assisting the pastor, Rev. Breckinridge, and preaching this evening. Mr. Williams is one of the best soloists who has yet appeared in this city, and the meetings are developing the deepest interest. Yesterday there were twelve accessions to the church, and at the evening services the church was taxed to its utmost capacity to accommodate the crowd in attendance.

IMPROVEMENT IS SLOW.

The latest information from the bedside of Judge R. S. Taylor in Boston indicated that the distinguished lawyer is doing fairly well, though his progress toward recovery is extremely slow, and the outcome cannot be foretold with any degree of certainty. A telegram to friends in the city this morning, referring to Judge Taylor's condition Sunday, announces a slight improvement.

WOULD BUY ASSETS OF OLD COMPANY

New Fort Wayne-Bryan Company Has Marion as Western Objective Point.

Charles S. Karoly, of Aurora, Ill., one of the promoters of the proposed Fort Wayne-Bryan electric railway, was in the city today to look after matters in connection with that enterprise and incidentally to see what has been doing in interurban matters since his company made its application for franchise.

It will be recalled that the new company asks for right-of-way in part identical with that granted the Ohio and Indiana company, and when the petition was filed the county commissioners deferred the matter until February upon the representation that there was yet a possibility that the old company might succeed in financing its project. Representatives of the new company stated today that they were willing to purchase any tangible assets which the Ohio and Indiana company might have, if it could be obtained at a fair price, but that the newcomers were not looking for an opportunity to invest in any blue sky. Whatever of the old company's property is of value to them they will buy if it can be secured at a fair figure, but no investment would be made in the way of reimbursing the old company for its expense of pioneering in the matter.

WOULD REACH MARION.

It is given out today that the new company is to be styled the Marion, Fort Wayne and Bryan Traction company, and that it intends not only to build from Bryan to Fort Wayne, but to push on westward to Marion. In a general way the route contemplates touching at Nine Mile, Zanesville, River, Markle, Warren and other points to reach the Grant county capital. Mr. Karoly made the drive overland today from Markle to Fort Wayne, and he left this afternoon for Chicago. Seven wealthy men, it is said, are ready to advance the money for the building of the new road.

LOCAL LINES.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Blank, of Orchard avenue—a daughter.

Mrs. Dr. Tucker has gone to Louisville, Ky., called there by the death of her mother.

Miss Etta Turner was a guest at the home of Miss Marie Schulp, west of the city, over Sunday.

The Women's Bible meeting of Wayne street M. E. church will again be omitted this week.

The Cheerful Aid society will meet at the home of Mrs. Theabold, 950 Erie street, Tuesday afternoon.

Tomorrow will be pay-day for the city park and street department employes. About $350 will be distributed.

A called meeting of Home lodge No. 342, F. and A. M., will be held Tuesday evening for work in the third degree.

One of the social events of last week was a masquerade party, which was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kline, of 1330 Stophlet street.

Max P. Baumgart, a baker, living on Fairfield avenue, fell last evening and fractured his left arm at the wrist. Dr. Enslen attended him.

John Rissing, living on St. Joe boulevard, fell on the icy sidewalk Saturday evening and fractured his left arm just above the wrist. Dr. McCausland reduced the fracture.

A jolly company of married people from Nebraska enjoyed a seven-mile sleighride west of the city Sunday, driving to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Schulp, where a magnificent dinner was served. After a musical program of an informal character the company, consisting of twenty-five ladies and gentlemen, made another drive of nine miles north before returning home.

LODGE PURPOSES REPRISAL SCHEME

Proposes Inquiry as to Trade Discrimination Against United States.

PUTS IN A RESOLUTION

Aimed at Germany and Russia --The Day's Work in Congress.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Senator Lodge today introduced a resolution directing the committee on finance to inquire whether certain countries are discriminating against the United States, and if so what law should be passed to give to countries preferential duties which do not discriminate against this country.

The resolution refers to the discriminations of France, Germany and Russia against the United States.

It went to the table in order to give Senator Aldrich an opportunity to make a statement concerning the subject.

THE SENATE.

Washington, Jan. 19.—In the senate today Mr. Cullom reported the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill and gave notice that he would call it up tomorrow.

A bill was passed to provide for holding terms of court at Helena, Ark.

Mr. Bailey (Texas) objected to the consideration of all bills by unanimous consent. When a bill reported by Mr. Culberson, changing the times for holding court in Virginia, was read Mr. Lodge (Massachusetts) objected, saying that as objection was to be confined to the republicans, he would object, which brought from Mr. Bailey the statement that the senators from New York had interfered in a matter pertaining to the state of Texas which was a purely local one.

Mr. Depew denied that the making of Port Arthur a port of entry was a local question.

The department of commerce and labor bill, as amended by the house, was referred to the committee on commerce. Mr. Nelson wanted the bill sent to conference at once, but Messrs. Spooner, Aldrich and Hale and others objected to that course, as it would prevent an opportunity to amend the house amendments.

At 1:35 the senate, on motion of Mr. Cullom (Illinois), went into executive session to consider the Cuban treaty.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, Jan. 19.—This was committee suspension day in the house and immediately after the reading of the journal the speaker recognized several members to move the passage of bills under suspension of the rules.

A bill was passed to grant a right-of-way through the Fort Sill military reservation to the Oklahoma and Western railroad.

A bill to remove the sentence of court martial against First Lieut. Francis S. Davidson, Ninth cavalry, who was dismissed from the army in 1875, and to authorize his appointment and retirement as a first lieutenant, aroused some antagonism. While the house was dividing up on the demand for a second a photographer in the public gallery took a flashlight photograph. The glare of the flash startled some of the members and Mr. Suzer (New York) cried out: "Mr. Speaker, I thought it was a bomb."

Mr. Lawrence (Massachusetts), in support of the bill for the relief of Lieutenant Davidson, said the bill would do a tardy act of justice to a deserving officer.

WERE MARRIED SUNDAY.

William H. Wyman and Miss Ida Fay McKrill were united in marriage at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. C. Breckinridge, of Bethany Presbyterian church, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller, 1817 Monroe street. Mr. Wyman is a Pennsylvania fireman and his bride is an accomplished Warsaw young lady. They will reside at 612 Lasselle street.

IN JUSTICES' COURTS.

Justice Tancey issued three warrants for George Cook, of Jackson township, against whom George Sausotes has a variety of complaints, which he is desirous of airing. One affidavit charges assault, another profanity and the third trespass. A constable is now scouring the precincts of Jackson and expects to get Mr. Cook into court in the morning.

Justice Skelton is this afternoon hearing a civil suit, which introduces the mysteries of muff-making and kindred furriery secrets. Stephens, the furier, and an employe named Kurtz have had some trouble about pay and today the uninitiated were told from the witness stand what sometimes happens to furs when they go into the repair shop.

MONEY CAME QUICKLY.

At the Wayne street M. E. church, Sunday morning, a statement of the church's financial condition was read and the congregation was asked to subscribe $500 to pay current expenses. John W. Sale was asked to take charge of securing the desired amount and he succeeded in doing so. Mr. Sale called for subscriptions of from $25 down, naming members of the congregation in accordance to their ability to contribute. In thirteen minutes $580 was subscribed.

FIVE MEN RECEIVE FATAL INJURIES

Safety Valve Blows Out in a Duquesne, Pa., Mill--A Trolley Car Hit.

Pittsburg, Jan. 19.—Five men were so badly injured by an explosion at the Carnegie works, at Duquesne, early today, that it is believed all will die. The throttle valve of a stationary engine, used to operate a coal crusher, blew out, and the five men, who were in the engine house at the time, were badly scalded by escaping steam, and some of them were badly cut and bruised. Two of the injured were taken to their homes in Duquesne, and three others were brought to the West Pennsylvania hospital.

The names:

Joseph Carrick, night foreman.

James W. Carrick, aged 34 years.

Steve Barlow, aged 20 years.

Michael Fetchko, aged 27.

Louis Ladauski, aged 25 years.

GRADE CROSSING MISHAP.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 19.—Two people were seriously hurt and about ten others more or less injured by a grade crossing accident at Hazlewood, today. The Versailles accommodation of the Baltimore and Ohio, southbound, crashed into a Homestead and McKeesport street car, No. 144, coming to the city.

The seriously hurt were:

Gertrude Hanna, aged 24 years, cut about the head and said to be injured internally.

David Cruckshank, body badly bruised and cut and leg fractured.

The other passengers were cut, bruised and otherwise injured, and were taken to their homes.

The accident was caused, it is thought, by a misunderstanding of the warning given by the flagman.

Northbound Versailles accommodation had just passed and the street car started across the tracks, when it was struck by the train coming in the opposite direction.

ENTIRE WARDROBE LOST IN FIRE TODAY

Blaze of Unknown Origin Does Damage in a Madison Street Residence.

Mrs. Chisholm, residing at 310 Madison street, lost practically her entire wardrobe in a blaze of mysterious origin which was discovered in a closet at her home at 10 o'clock today.

The fire was discovered when dense smoke from a closet began permeating the upper rooms of the residence, and investigation disclosed that a large amount of clothing hanging therein was ablaze, and so badly burned that the garments dropped in pieces at a touch. Several pails of water hastily dashed into the apartment extinguished the blaze without calling the firemen.

The entire interior of the closet had been burned over and only prompt discovery prevented a more disastrous fire. It is believed that the blaze was due to the igniting of a match by the gnawing of a mouse, which may have found its way into the closet. The residence was only slightly damaged, but the loss to the tenant will be quite heavy.

Virgil Burns, a well known Pennsylvania employe, is very low at his home on Hendricks street. Mr. Burns has been ill for about three months, and is suffering fro[illegible] disease.

DURBIN'S RIPPER BILL PROGRESSES

Shively, of the Reformatory, Demands an Inquiry at Jeffersonville

SAYS IT IS DUE BOARD

Meanwhile Bill is Up to Its Passage in Senate--A Fight Promised.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

Indianapolis, Jan. 19.—Charles E. Shively, president of the board of managers of the Indiana reformatory at Jeffersonville, has given out a statement in regard to Senator Goodwin and the ripper bill for reorganization of the reformatory in which he says the board demands legislative investigation of the institution before the bill is placed on its passage in either house.

He says this inquiry should be had in order that rumors of mismanagement may be either established or set aside.

Mr. Shively says that the passage of the Goodwin bill will put the reformatory back into politics, as it would mean the management by a partisan rather than a non-partisan board. This statement of Shively was taken to mean that a hard fight would be made on the measure, but the bill was handed down on second reading in the senate today and advanced to engrossment without a word being said for or against it.

In the usual course of proceedings it will be handed down on third reading tomorrow and placed upon its passage.

Senator Barcus, of Terre Haute, has served notice that he is against the bill and he is expected to lead the fight of the opposition. Democratic members of the senate will caucus on the bill tonight.

The senate was in session two hours this morning and passed several legalizing acts. Lengthy discussion was had on the bill prohibiting the shooting of quail for the next five years and after an amendment changing the time limit to three years had been adopted the bill was recommitted.

The house had a short session this afternoon. Nothing important was done.

SOUTH BEND STORE LOOTED BY ROBBERS

Jewelry Establishment Suffers a Loss of $5,000--No Clew Found.

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 19.—Robbers entered the jewelry establishment of R. M. Munich, on South Michigan street last night and carried away goods valued at $5,000. There is no clue.

HOLD ANOTHER CONFERENCE.

Promoters of the proposed new hot water and steam heating system are holding another conference with the members of the board of public works and the city attorney this afternoon, discussing the terms of the franchise which has been petitioned for. Those present include Messrs. W. J. Vesey, G. W. Beers, Louis Fox, Charles McCulloch and W. P. Breen, together with City Attorney Shambaugh and the members of the board of works. Members of the company stated this afternoon that they were extremely anxious to get franchise matters settled in order to begin as early as possible upon the actual construction of the system.

INDIANA POSTMASTERS.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Among nominations for postmasters sent to the senate today by the president were the following for Indiana: Red Key, John W. Hill; Upland, Asa Ballinger.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Nicholas J. Lauer and Margaret Hap.

Henry Greenwald, jr., and Evalin Fordham.

John W. Sunderland and Charlotta Sunderland.

Queen Esther lodge, degree of Rebekah, will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Charles Cran, 363 Baker street, tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Cran will be assisted by Mrs. Cutshall, Mrs. Clark and Miss Clark.

GUESTS OF HOTEL PERISH IN FIRE

Four Dead and Four Missing—Two Die in Flames in Cleveland.

Morrissey, B. C., Jan. 19.—Four men were burned to death in a hotel fire here last night. Four others are missing and it is believed they also perished in the flames. The Spooner hotel, leased by A. Johnson, caught fire by the overturning of a lamp in the barroom. The proprietor aroused the guests, most of whom escaped in their night clothes. All were coal miners or prospectors. It was impossible for the proprietor to reach all the rooms. The remains of the four men have not been identified. Johnson's loss is $4,000. Morrissey is a small coal mining town and has no fire protection.

APARTMENT HOUSES BURN.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 19.—Fire early today destroyed two adjoining apartment houses near the corner of Euclid avenue and Andrews street, East Cleveland, resulting in the death of at least two persons, and the injury of several others.

The dead:

Mrs. Guy Norton, 20 years old, burned to death.

Mrs. Jessie Dickey, widow, 45 years old, burned to death.

The injured:

Miss Clara Jackson, servant girl, badly burned.

Guy Norton, badly burned; in a serious condition.

Rev. N. W. Shoup, pastor of the Windemere Methodist church, slightly burned.

The origin of the fire is unknown. The fifty tenants of the two buildings were asleep when the flames broke out. A panic ensued among them when they were finally aroused and many were rescued with the greatest difficulty, nearly all escaping in their night clothing. The total pecuniary loss is about $60,000, partially covered by insurance.

ROOMS WERE CHILLY

It was found impossible to properly heat one or two rooms in the Clay school building this morning, and shortly after the hour for beginning the school sessions the pupils were excused until this afternoon.

PATIENT WILL RECOVER.

Dr. Carl Proegler, who yesterday visited the Kees home in Milan township in pursuance of his duty as county health officer, reports that the smallpox patient, John Kees, who was in a critical condition some days ago, is making satisfactory improvement and will undoubtedly recover. There are no new cases of the disease, though there are a number of people in the vicinity who have been exposed to the contagion and are being carefully governed by the quarantine regulations.

LOCAL NEWS.

Hon. T. E. Ellison returned Saturday evening from a business trip to Kansas City. He has been absent a week or more.

Mrs. Ed Klingman has gone to Bluffton to attend the funeral of her cousin, Miss Emma Schlaugenhauf, who died Saturday morning.

The ladies of the Order of Eastern Star will hold their installation of officers Thursday evening for members and invited guests. A banquet will be a part of the evening program.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Himes, of West Williams street, pleasantly entertained the S. C. club Saturday evening. First prizes were won by Miss Grace Kabisch and George Kaegel, while consolations went to Mrs. Kaegel and Oliver Hart.

Messrs. Tyler & Cummings, of the Wayne hotel, are transforming the room formerly occupied by the Manufacturers' club into a very handsome reading room, lounging room and ladies' waiting room. It will be elaborately finished.

Frank E. Barrows, of Boston, is in the city on a visit to friends. Mr. Barrows is delighted with Boston and has gained perceptibly in weight since he removed eastward. He says, however, that Boston people are having difficulty in securing fuel in common with other sections of the country and that any sort of coal is difficult to obtain there even at $15 per ton.

The congregation of the Church of the Precious Blood will tender a farewell reception this evening to Rev. Father Nigsch, who has been appointed to a charge at Ottawa, Ohio. The event will be held in the school hall and the congregation will present a substantial testimonial of its esteem of the retiring pastor.

Some weeks ago the married men's society of Trinity German Lutheran church gave an entertainment and it was such an unqualified success that the young people have demanded that it be repeated in order that they also may enjoy the program. This request has been granted and on Friday evening the society will again render its program, to which has been added a number of the best features from a program recently given by the ladies' society. Eighteen numbers will comprise the program.

JUDGE ANDERSON ARRIVES TONIGHT

Federal Court Convenes in Fort Wayne Tomorrow--Some Cases on Docket.

Judge Albert B. Anderson, the newly appointed federal judge, who succeeded the veteran John H. Baker upon the bench of the United States district and circuit courts, will arrive in Fort Wayne this evening to hold his first term of court in this city. He will be accompanied by Noble C. Butler, clerk; Henry C. Pettit, marshal; John B. Foley, chief deputy marshal; Joseph B. Kealing, United States district attorney; J. J. M. Lafollette, assistant attorney, and Postoffice Inspectors Foster and Kile.

The sessions of the federal court open at the government building at 9 o'clock tomorrow, and the principal matters upon the docket, which are likely to come up for hearing, are:

Consolidated Store Service company vs. James H. Foley, an action on patent.

Merchants' and Clerks' Savings bank, of Toledo, vs. town of Camden; suit on bonds; demand, $18,000.

Charles S. Russell and Harry G. Jennison vs. city of Elkhart; suit for street paving payment; demand, $10,000.

Cassimer B. Magers, receiver of the Churubusco Water and Light company, vs. town of Churubusco; suit on bonds; demand, $5,000.

An appeal from the decision of Referee Swigert, of Logansport, in the bankruptcy matter of James M. Key, formerly a banker at Andrews, is brought by the Capitol National bank, of Indianapolis.

CRIMINAL DOCKET.

Upon the criminal docket are these cases:

United States vs. James L. Amos, of Elkhart county, charged with opening another person's mail.

United States vs. Earl Reed and Harry Davis, violation of postal laws.

United States vs. Lawrence A. Eddingfield; violation of postal laws.

United States vs. Albert L. Tucker, of Warsaw; violation of revenue laws.

LIST OF THE JURORS.

The list of jurors as drawn for the term is as follows:

Edwin L. Barber, Larwill; Solomon M. Barnes, Dunkirk; William Brindle, Fort Wayne; James B. Chapman, Samuel Gettys, Patrick Cain, Hartford City; Oliver Kline, Huntington; Joseph Clark, Columbia City; George W. Crooks, Waterloo; Joseph Elliott, Wabash; John F. Ferguson, Alfred C. Randall, Edward Suter, Fort Wayne; Andrew Miller, Markle; Daniel Mock, W. A. Popejoy, Poneto; Fred P. Shaw, Farmland; John W. Shireling, Saratoga; David Showalter, Roanoke; Charles Stahl, Liberty Center.

COWBOY ROOSEVELT'S LUCK.

Picking up a western cattleman the other day, he told me something new about Mr. Roosevelt. "You people down east," said he, "do not apparently know that Roosevelt lost about all he had when he was in the cattle business out west some years ago. It was no fault of his, but was due to two consecutive cold winters, over which he nor none of the rest of us had any control. He had a big herd of as fine cattle as ever rustled for buffalo grass, and almost the entire herd perished in the excessively rough weather.

"I think," went on my informant, "that Mr. Roosevelt had about 3,000 head of cattle. He was out on the range both seasons, and took a hand personally in looking after them. He was in the saddle nearly every day, and a right strenuous cowboy he made, too. He could ride as far and as fast as the best of them, and there wasn't a bucking broncho on the place that he wouldn't tackle, even after the professionals had given up the beast as everlastingly no good. That's what first gave the cowboys respect for the tenderfoot from the east. They soon took to him, for he was a jolly good fellow, so to speak. The first hard winter took about half his stock. He was a little disheartened, but still in the saddle. The next winter was colder still, and out of his big herd of 3,500 he had only about 400 left to ship. He was practically cleaned out, and that was the last we saw of Teddy Roosevelt in the cattle business in the "bad lands," which is the spot he had selected to make his fortune.—New Yorker.

STRIKING GOD.

Some of us may have hurt our friends during the past year by the way we treated them. Cardinal Newman says: "It is almost a definition of a gentleman to say he is one who never gives pain." This is a very high standard of gentlemanliness, but it is none too high. That is what "love one another as I have loved you" means. Some of us are thoughtless and say and do things which give pain to gentle hearts. Then our scripture reminds us of another friend to whom we should never give pain. "Grieve not the Holy Spirit." Nathaniel Hawthorne had a little daughter who was fond of making up stories for her younger brother. One day she was overheard telling him of a naughty boy who grew naughtier and naughtier, until at last he struck God. Really every unloving or false word we speak and every wrong deed we do strikes God. When we hurt one of God's children we hurt our Father himself. One of the resolutions we should make at the beginning of the year should be never to grieve the Holy Spirit, never to give pain to the heart of Jesus Christ, never to strike God.—Selected.

SAY THEY HAVE GAS; WANT TO KNOW WHY

Anonymous Writer Puts Up a Kick on Inequality on Grant Avenue.

Some German citizen, who neglected the formality of signing his name to a communication to the Fort Wayne Gas company, is perhaps excusably distressed over the fact that while he is suffering from a fuel shortage, certain of his neighbors appear to have plenty of natural gas. He wants the company to immediately investigate the whyfores.

The communication, written in German, cites two Grant avenue residences by number, and asserts that the occupants manage somehow to secure all the natural gas needed, heating six or seven rooms with a single cook stove, while the correspondent who has neither wood nor coal on hand is putting up an heroic fight against death by freezing. He calls the attention of the company to the discrepancy, and would like to have a pointer or two upon how the thing is worked. The communication is now in the hands of the inspection department.

With the lower temperature the gas supply in many parts of the city is again at a minimum. Sunday, with all pumping stations working at full capacity, it was impossible to make any sort of gain in the "head," and there was no perceptible increase of pressure during the night.

SOME CHINESE FABLES.

There is a pleasing humor in most Chinese fables which renders them highly readable, and in the application serves as a sugar-coating to the pill. This humor crops out in the very first fable of which the Chinese have any record. It is to be found in the "Histories of the Contending States," where a certain prince uses it as an illustration of the need of a wholesome unity among those who, though entertaining internecine feuds, have cause to combine against a common foe, says the New York Evening Post.

"A mussel was basking on the bank of a river," so says this fable, when a big bittern came by. Seeing it move, the fowl put its head on one side and watched it. Then it drew near and pecked at the mussel, but that wily shellfish clapped its jaws together like a trap and held the bird's beak fast. Then said the bittern: "If you don't open today and if you don't turn me loose tomorrow someone will find a dead mussel lying about here." To which the mussel made reply: "If I don't open today and if I don't release you tomorrow they will see a dead bittern holding up his toes on the beach." At this point a fisherman came by and seized the pair of them.

Most Chinese fables point a wholesome moral, nor is it difficult to see the application of the foregoing.

Another quaint little story illustrates the similarity of the Chinese mind to that of more enlightened races, for it plays the part of a satire on the pernicious habit of borrowing trouble. Where we talk of two old women mingling their tears on the bank of a deep pool in inconsolable grief at what might have happened if little Freddy had fallen in there and been drowned, the Chinese have the following: A certain rich old man of the Ch'l state gave his annual party to commemorate his birthday and invited all his sons and his grandsons to grace the occasion. In the midst of the jollifications, however, he was observed sitting apart with an expression of woe upon his face. Being asked what was the matter he replied: "I was only thinking what trouble I should have in inviting all my guests when my two hundredth birthday came around."

Another which is purely Chinese is remarkable for its subtlety. A tiger was making preparations to devour a fox, when the sly one claimed some consideration from the fact that he was superior to all other animals of the forest. "And if you want proof of the fact," he continued, "come with me and I will show you." They then walked together through the forest and all the other animals glanced at his companion and was struck with the lordly manner in which he waived the other animals off. "Verily," he said, "this is the king of beasts," and being too stupid to see that he himself was the object of terror and respect, he decided not to attack the fox.

BANKS.

TO THE WOMEN.

Some women are just a trifle timid about going to a bank to transact business. And why? Simply because they are not familiar with the rules of banking. This shouldn't be so, and indeed, this isn't so with those that come to this bank; for we aim to make every transaction so clear and so plain that dealing with a bank soon becomes to them an easy habit.

We appreciate the patronage of women. Their business with us is already large, and steadily increasing. If you are not now a patron, then please consider this an invitation to become one.

We have received for the ladies' use the prettiest pass books and check books that you ever saw. These cost you nothing.

M. DE BLOWITZ DIES AT FRENCH CAPITAL

Famous Correspondent, Friend of Kings and Statesmen, is No More.

Paris, Jan. 19.—Henri de Blowitz, for more than thirty years the Paris correspondent of the London Times, and who perhaps knew more concerning European politics, and had a wider intimacy with rulers and statesmen than any living man, died here last night of an attack of apoplexy, which he suffered a few days ago. The history of M. de Blowitz has been closely interwoven with the history of Europe since the Franco-Prussian war. Kings have admitted him to their councils and have not disdained to seek his advice and make him the vehicle of their views to the public.

Henri Georges Stephen Adolphe Opper, which was originally his name, was born in 1832 in the little town of Bludowitz, in Austrian Silesia. From the name of his native town M. de Blowitz in later years adopted the name under which he gained fame.

The Times was indebted for the discovery of de Blowitz to Lawrence Oliphant, who during and prior to the Franco-Prussian war was its correspondent at Paris.

HIS RECORD IN THE COMMUNE.

M. de Blowitz had been established for some eight or ten years at Marseilles when the war of 1870 broke out. During the earlier portion of his sojourn there he occupied the chair of professor of foreign literature, from which he retired on marrying the wealthy widow who, after he became the Times correspondent in Paris, so long presided over his establishment in the Avenue Marceau. When, following the crushing reverses sustained by the French at Sedan and elsewhere, a general call to arms was issued by the government of national defense, M de Blowitz was among the first to respond, enlisted in the national guard at Marseilles, and at the same time took steps to secure his naturalization as a French citizen.

As a national guardsman M. de Blowitz took a prominent part in combating the commune insurrection at Marseilles, and when General Espivant de la Villeboisnet ultimately crushed the rebellion M. de Blowitz was dispatched by him to Versailles to make a report of the whole affair to Thiers. So conspicuous were his services during the commune insurrection at Marseilles—it was, thanks to his ingenuity, that the beleaguered city was able to remain in telegraphic communication with Versailles by means of a secret wire of which the communists were ignorant—that M. de Blowitz was created a knight of the Legion of Honor.

Thiers likewise promised him the appointment of French consul general at Riga and it was while waiting for this appointment at Versailles that Fred Marshall, long the English secretary of the Japanese legation at Paris, brought about a meeting between de Blowitz and Oliphant. The latter, on learning of the little man's intimacy with Thiers, requested him to obtain from the latter an interview for the Times, which de Blowitz proceeded to do with such success that Oliphant immediately invited him to become his principal assistant and to abandon all thought of going abroad in a consular capacity for the French government. When, about a year later, Oliphant resigned from the Times in order to come to the United States as a member of the sect of Dr. Harris at Portland, N. Y., M. de Blowitz succeeded him as principal correspondent at Paris, a post which he retained until a short time ago, when he retired from active work.

NEVER BETRAYED CONFIDENCE

The secret of the marvelous success of M. de Blowitz was the absolute and complete confidence with which he inspired the statesmen, the politicians and the diplomats with whom he was brought in contact and which he never betrayed. They all felt that they could depend absolutely on his discretion, no matter how great the temptation from a journalistic point of view to do otherwise.

On more than one occasion the late Prince Hohenlohe, when German ambassador at Paris, quietly requested the French minister of foreign affairs, through M. de Blowitz, to attach no undue importance to official communications which he had been directed by Prince Bismarck to convey to the French government, and which, had it not been for this intimation on the part of M. de Blowitz, might have resulted in a diplomatic rupture between the two countries, while in another instance Bismarck himself made use of M. de Blowitz and of the latter's dispatches to the Times to counteract the designs of the war party at Berlin, which was endeavoring to force his hand and to revive the war with France at a moment which he deemed inopportune.

"SCOOPED" THE WORLD.

In one word, M. de Blowitz served France and all the foreign governments, as well as the cause of universal peace, quite as much by the news which he refrained from writing as that which he published, and his services were fitly rewarded when, at the congress of Berlin in 1878, at which the premiers and chancellors of the various great powers of Europe took part, there was given to him by them an advance copy of the treaty concluded at the congress and he was thus enabled to secure a wonderful "beat" for the Times over all other newspapers, each represented at Berlin by the cleverest and most astute members of its staff.

The sympathies of M. de Blowitz for Spain were, perhaps, on account of his friendship for the late king, always very strong, and they were especially apparent at the time of the peace congress at Paris following the war of 1898, when he used all his influence with foreign statesmen, with the foreign press, and in connection with the framing of public opinion in Europe to assist the Spanish peace commissioners in their efforts to obtain more favorable terms from the United States than the latter's plenipotentiaries were disposed to concede.

GAMBLING HOUSE IS RAIDED BY POLICE

Down Town Place Visited and Four Players Taken—Police News.

When Frank Stockton wrote his famous literary puzzle, "The Lady or the Tiger," he had probably never seen a tiger with its tail pulled out by the roots or he might have written a more vivid description of the fierceness of the animal when stripped of caudal appendage. At police court this morning there was on exhibition a genuine tiger's tail plucked from the original copy in the lair in the jungle over Belchin's saloon, on Calhoun street. The tail consisted of a check rack containing 1,500 red, blue and white checks, and was pulled by a detail under Captain Whitney, assisted by Sergeant Harkenrider, at about 11 o'clock on Saturday night. Ever since the last anti-gambling order was given out the places formerly used for gambling purposes have been visited at intervals for the purpose of determining whether the order is being obeyed or not. Last Saturday night it was found that the gentlemen interested at the Belchin place had overstepped the traces and in consequence four men found themselves in limbo. They were taken over and with them a big check rack, which made a pretty ornament for Judge Dreibelbiss' desk when the clerk rapped for order. Henry Goder was listed for keeping a gaming house and George Wright, Fred Sewell and Edward Brower were charged with gambling. Goder had deposited $20 and the other three $10 each, which sums were forfeited. The court gave no order to the superintendent of police regarding the disposition of the checks and they will be returned to the owners.

OTHER CASES.

William Bruce had a private conversation with Detective Rulo yesterday and in consequence was locked up for vagrancy. He met Rulo on the street and asked him for a dime to buy a bed with. Rulo asked him to take a stroll with him and before Mr. Bruce knew what was happening he found himself locked up at the police station charged with vagrancy. He was fixed for fifteen days without protest.

Guy Huderpath pleaded guilty to drunkenness and was sent over for eleven days. Guy said that he was not quite certain whether he had been drunk or not, but that from the way he felt something must have happened to him. He nonchalantly finished his cigar as the judge wrote out the mittimus.

LOOKED LIKE BURGLARY.

Private Watchman Laughlin last evening discovered the rear door of Menter, Rosenbloom & Co.'s store, at 921 Calhoun street, open and promptly notified Manager Gardner. An examination was made and the police department was notified. At first Mr. Gardner thought that a considerable amount of goods had been taken, but later said that he could not designate what had been taken until an inventory was had. This will be done today. The rear door was pried open with a jimmy and a lot of grease, evidently drippings from a tallow candle, was found on the floor near the door. The burglars overlooked three cents in the cash drawer, which was all that had been left there Saturday night.

POLICE NOTES.

William Hite, the Hanna street grocer, reported that someone broke a window in his store last night. Hite's place is a rendezvous for a gang of young fellows and the supposition is that during a friendly frolic somebody pushed himself through the window.

An electric wire was reported down near Rhinesmith & Simonson's factory last evening. The matter was reported by the officer and the electric light company promptly repaired the damage.

A leak in the water main in front of 1816 Calhoun street was reported to the police station and in turn the waterworks department was notified. The break was repaired yesterday afternoon and was not a serious one.

Mrs. Lumbard, of 536 West Wayne street, reports the loss of a valuable setter dog.

Clara Damon, who lives at 1610 Buchanan street, reported to the police department that she had lost a pocketbook containing a $2 bill and about $5.50 in silver change, also some other articles of small value, including a railroad ticket.

Albert Hartwig, of Woodlawn avenue, reported to the police that on Saturday night two young men stopped him as he was going home, but that they got nothing from him. The young man did not say whether they wanted to borrow a dime or struck him for a job.

ABOUT THE CITY HALL.

The board of works, in session this afternoon, had nothing of importance to attract their attention.

The notices were sent out today instructing the councilmen to present themselves for the meeting of the committee of the whole tomorrow evening.

A new case of diphtheria has been reported from 1916 Broadway.

Dr. Bell has been granted a permit to erect a house on Gay street, at a cost of $2,000.

BOUND HAND AND FOOT

With muscles drawn and throbbing with pain, and joints swollen, stiff and tender, the rheumatic patient is as helpless and dependent as though bound hand and foot. No disease causes such intense suffering, such sharp, nerve-racking pains as Rheumatism, and this unfeeling monster, unless checked, crushes the strength and hope of its victims.

When the system becomes infected with Uric Acid and other like poisons they are absorbed into the blood and lodged in the muscles, joints and nerves. Then with the suddenness of an electric shock, pains begin to shoot through the muscle or joint affected, which often swells and inflames, and becomes tender, feverish and sore. Unless treated through the blood Rheumatism grows steadily worse, finally ending in shrunken muscles, immovable joints, shaky nerves, and the invalid's chair or crutches. The cure of Rheumatism can never be complete or permanent until the acid blood has been purified and the system cleansed of all poisonous matter. S. S. S. does this promptly and surely, because it is a perfect blood medicine, and an antidote for the irritating acids that cause Rheumatism.

S. S. S. purifies and invigorates the polluted, stagnant blood, and when a free, healthy circulation is again established, the gritty, corroding particles are washed out of the aching muscles and joints, and the longed for relief comes and the cure is permanent because the cause has been removed and nothing remains in the blood to produce another attack.

The history of the new American navy records that more lives have been lost aboard our warships by accidents than were sacrificed during all the naval operations of the war with Spain. The recent explosion of powder aboard the Massachusetts was the second accident of the sort to occur within a short time.

Worrying a dog for mere pastime is not uniformly a safe proceeding. Germany's little pleasantries in front of Venezuelan fortifications has provoked the dog. Bombardment of the defenses of Maracaibo by the German warship Panther, Saturday, for no reason that has yet come to light brought out a spirited response from the fort with the result that the German vessel retired with damage.

There are signs that the legislature of Indiana has become sufficiently interested in the subject of voting machines to hold out some prospect of a law that will practically provide for the adoption of machine voting in this state. The bill now before the legislature provides that the county commissioners of all counties having located in them a city of ten thousand or more inhabitants shall provide voting machines and that all other counties may adopt them if desired. This bill is purposed to amend an act of the last legislature in such manner as will amount to a distinct adoption of machine voting and making it compulsory in certain counties as described. The committee to which the bill was referred has reported it favorably and the probability is strong that the law will be enacted.

Abram S. Hewitt, whose death is just announced, was in some respects a unique character in American politics. Largely endowed with high intellectual and business capacities, he was a man whose ambition might have been the only limit to his achievements had he united to his other equipments the faculty of cultivating men closely. He was a man of most positive opinions, which he expressed with a frankness that sometimes exceeded the barest considerations of prudence. His public acts were governed almost solely by his own view of the matters concerned and he frequently brought down upon his head the wrath of those whom he offended. But he was as sturdy in his honesty and the keeping of his honor as he was candid in the choice of means for aiding his chosen courses. At heart he was philanthropic, public spirited and progressive. His arraignment, with the biting severity of which he alone was capable, of the wealthy men of the country in an address he delivered not long since, will be remembered as one of the things peculiarly characteristic of him, for though a rich man himself and the associate of rich men, he did not hesitate to cry shame upon those who, having the means to do so much for the betterment of the distressed did so little. Mr. Hewitt was often mistaken in his views of public affairs, but he never could be charged with expressing an opinion he did not wholly believe in. In all respects he was a big, brainy man who left an impress on his time.

STAGER—GEARY.

A very pretty wedding of the past week was that of Miss Georgia Geary, of Coesse, and Daniel Stager, of this city, which took place at Mr. Stager's new home, 1334 Huestis avenue, Rev. Zach Harris, pastor of the Creighton avenue Church of Christ, officiating. The wedding took place at 8 o'clock in the evening and was witnessed by a small company of guests, relatives and close friends. The bride's gown was of white crepon and she carried a large bouquet of bride's roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Josie Plank, who was dressed in blue silk and carried red carnations. Ross Palmer, of Van Wert, Ohio, was groomsman. The rooms were very prettily decorated with carnations and plants. Miss Grace Perrin, organist of Trinity Episcopal church, played the Lohengrin wedding march. The groom is assistant foreman in The Sentinel Press room.

LIFE OF ABRAM S. HEWITT IS ENDED

Noted Statesman Expires in New York at the Age of Eighty Years.

A DISTINGUISHED CAREER

Began Life in Obscurity and Worked His Way to Fame and Wealth.

New York, Jan. 19.—Abram S. Hewitt, former mayor of New York and for many years representative in congress, died at 6 o'clock Sunday morning in his eighty-first year, having been critically ill for ten days. With him at the moment of his death were his wife, his three sons and three daughters.

Mr. Hewitt, who has been in feeble health for some months, was attacked with obstructive jaundice January 8, and from the first it was realized by his attending physicians that there was practically no hope of the aged patient's recovery. On the following Sunday it was thought that Mr. Hewitt could not survive the night and the members of his family were summoned to his bedside, but his wonderful vitality kept him alive for a week longer.

The funeral services, conducted by Bishop Potter, will be held in Calvary church, of which Mr. Howitt was a member, on Wednesday.

QUAINT POLITICAL FIGURE.

In many respects Mr. Hewitt was the quaintest figure in New York politics. He was born at Haverstraw in the state of New York July 31, 1822. His parents, while by no means rich, were yet quite prosperous, and removed to New York city while the future mayor and congressman was a mere child.

The lad was sent to the common schools of New York. He won a scholarship at Columbia college which had been offered as a prize, and he was graduated from Columbia in 1842 at the head of his class, having proved himself a remarkably brilliant student.

One year after his graduation he was given the position of professor in mathematics and at once began the study of law. In 1845 he was admitted to the bar, and after trying to practice that profession finally gave it up as altogether too detrimental to his health. About this time he struck up a partnership with Peter Cooper and grew rich in the iron business in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. He afterward married a daughter of the great New York philanthropist who was his partner, and did much to advance Mr. Cooper's schemes for public free education. It was largely due to Mr. Hewitt's efforts and ingenuity that the present Cooper Institute was launched on its remarkable mission.

NAMED FOR CONGRESS.

In 1874 Mr. Hewitt was nominated for member of congress from the Tenth New York district by Tammany hall. His nomination created a bitter opposition in New York politics. His election was fiercely fought by James O'Brien and the Apollo hall democracy. It was in this election that the fatal affray took place which resulted in the arrest and acquittal of Richard Croker, who was at that time fire commissioner. This tragic matter resulted in a fast and warm friendship between Croker and Hewitt.

In 1876 Mr. Hewitt was a delegate to the democratic national convention at St. Louis, and he was the only delegate representing a New York city district who voted for Samuel J. Tilden. This caused an estrangement between Mr. Hewitt and John Kelly, the Tammany leader, which lasted until Kelly's death.

In 1876 Mr. Hewitt was re-elected to congress, and in the following year he drew out from Tammany and assisted in the organization of Irving hall. In 1878 he declined a nomination to congress, but in 1880 was induced again to become a candidate, receiving the united nomination of both factions of his party. He went back to congress in 1882 and again in 1884, and in 1885 he was the choice of the county democracy for governor of New York at the convention at Saratoga.

ELECTION AS MAYOR.

In 1886 the democrats united on Mr. Hewitt for mayor of New York, and he was elected after an exciting campaign, in which he had the fight of his life, with Henry George as his chief opponent.

After his retirement from the mayoralty of New York he lived quietly, looking after his business interests, which were largely involved with the Trenton Iron company, the New Jersey Iron and Steel company and the Peter Cooper glue factory. His last public utterance was that in which a few months ago he repudiated the democratic party as having lost all its principles. This was brought out by the action of the state convention which declared for government control of the coal industry and for other reforms which were antagonistic to Mr. Hewitt's conceptions of good public policy.

LUNG POWERS IN DISPUTE.

Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 19.—Col. John T. Crisp, the veteran state legislator from Jackson county, has issued a challenge in behalf of his friend, W. Jefferson Pollard, reading clerk of the Missouri house of representatives, to a vocal combat at any time or place that Mr. Williamson, reading clerk of the Illinois house of representatives, may designate. Colonel Crisp suggests the appointment of a committee of three by the speaker of each house to judge the contest, also that each of the reading clerks shall have ten days in which to train his vocal organs for the ordeal. The challenge is the result of a controversy as to which of the two reading clerks possessed the more wonderful pair of lungs, both having wide reputations for their reading powers.

HAD THE WRONG IDEA.

New York, Jan. 19.—Baron Speck Von Sternburg has, according to the Herald's correspondent in Berlin, received his official appointment as ambassador to the United States, and has been given parting instructions by Emperor William. He discussed German-American relations in the course of an interview, saying among other things:

"The trouble with the German embassy in Washington has been heretofore that it has not been sufficiently in touch with the American spirit or, as the kaiser calls it, 'Amerikanische Gesischtszuege.'

"Personally, I admire Dr. Von Holleben very much, but he did not grasp the spirit of the American people.

"Before perfect relations can be secured between Germany, America and England, it is necessary that the German and American press should be more fair. In German military and naval circles it is hard to uproot the impression that the Monroe doctrine is not an instrument used by the United States to hold South America."

COLD PROPOSITION.

A young man from this city, who has had a varied theatrical experience, wrote a sketch for himself and a local actress, says the Indianapolis News. He thought after reading it over he had made a hit and that before many days he would be standing in front of the footlights in a blaze of glory. He scraped up money enough to make a trip to see a theatrical booking agent in Chicago, and was directed to Castle. He was told that Castle was the coldest man that ever happened to get on earth, but he thought he had a good thing that would be readily recognized by a man who knew what a good sketch was. He found Castle in his office and received a reception so cold that ice in the Klondike looked like steam alongside of it. After partly listening to his story, the theatrical agent snapped out:

"How much have you been getting?"

"I am in the habit of getting $100 a week," responded the would-be playwright.

"Well, it's a d—d bad habit, and you want to get out of it," said Castle.

"But I must live, Mr. Castle," said the playwright, meekly.

"That's not at all necessary," responded Castle, even more coldly than ever.

The young man wrapped his mantle about him and departed, feeling sure that he could not do business with an iceberg.

GERMAN WARSHIP WAS REPULSED

Venezuelan Fort Beats Back the Cruiser Panther at Maracaibo.

A FIERCE ENGAGEMENT

Fire of the Fort Said to Have Badly Damaged the German Warship.

Maracaibo, Jan. 19.—The German cruiser Panther was badly worsted Saturday afternoon in a hot engagement lasting for one hour with Fort San Carlos at the entrance to Lake Maracaibo. The fort replied to the warship's fire with four guns. The fire proved too hot for the Germans, for the ship, which was evidently badly damaged, abandoned the fight and withdrew in the direction of Curacoa. The fort suffered no damage and but three men were wounded. The casualties on the Panther cannot be ascertained.

The attack upon the fort was without any provocation on the part of the defenders. The fort is twenty-two miles from Maracaibo and commands the entrance to the lake or inner bay. The cruiser appeared off the fort shortly after noon.

It soon became apparent she was bent upon forcing the passage to the harbor and preparations were at once begun to defend the position. But four guns of the fort were usable, but General Bello instantly ordered these manned and served with ammunition.

BOMBARDMENT TERRIFIC.

These preparations had no sooner been completed when there was a puff of smoke from the Panther's port battery and a shell came crashing over the fort. The fort replied instantly and for over three-quarters of an hour a terrific bombardment was maintained. The shells from the Panther mostly passed over the redoubt, although several struck, but did little damage.

One shell burst inside the fort, wounding three men, none of them seriously, however. After a time the fire from the Panther slackened and the fort's fire was also withheld to allow the guns to cool.

PANTHER QUITS FIGHT.

In a few moments the fort opened fire again, but the Panther had evidently had enough of the fight, and after sending a few shots screaming over the fort, she steamed off in the direction of Curacoa.

It was believed in the fort that many shots struck the vessel and she appeared to be badly used up. On account of the heavy smoke which obscured the scene it was impossible to tell the exact effects of the fort's fire, but the soldiers believe that there must have been several of the Germans killed.

General Bello, the commander of the fortress, characterized the attack of the Germans as entirely unprovoked. He said that no ultimatum or warning of any kind was received before the cruiser opened fire.

When it became known in the city that a German warship had engaged the fort and had been driven off the excitement was intense. There were popular demonstrations of joy upon the streets and until late in the night crowds paraded the thoroughfares celebrating the victory.

WILD JOY IN CARACAS.

Caracas, Jan. 19.—When the news became known here through a cable dispatch from General Bello to Dr. Terro Cardenas, secretary to President Castro, that the German cruiser Panther had attempted to force an entrance to Lake Maracaibo and had been defeated after a lively battle with Fort San Carlos, the city fairly went wild with excitement.

All the war fever of a few weeks ago broke out afresh. Bands paraded the streets playing the national air. Congratulatory speeches were made on the street corners, and the city gave itself up to such a celebration as has seldom been witnessed here before.

The action of the German commander in beginning an unprovoked attack on the fort has puzzled all the officials here. One explanation given is that the Panther probably intended seizing the Venezuelan gunboat Miranda, which is taking refuge in Lake Maracaibo.

RUSSIA REPLIES TO BRITAIN.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 17.—Russia has replied to the British note of Nov. 30, last, on the subject of the sugar convention. She reiterates the views expressed in previous notes, says she considers the British contentions to be attempts to interfere in her domestic legislation and repudiates the idea that another state may, in its own interest, press for a change in Russia's internal legislation, or in the event of Russia not agreeing to its proposals that it can penalize Russia's products without violating existing commercial treaties. The note declares that Russia can in no eventuality give her adhesion to the Brussels agreement and concludes: "As Great Britain declines arbitration and as the penalty clause can not be applied to Russian sugar until the international commission declares the Russian system to be a bounty system, any further exchange of views before the commission settles the positions would not be productive of results."

SEVEN ARE DEAD.

Washington, Jan. 19.—A cablegram from Rear Admiral Higginson, dated San Juan, Porto Rico, Jan. 18, was received at the navy department stating that altogether seven men were dead as the result of the powder explosion in the eight-inch turret of the battleship Massachusetts, while at target practice off Culebra last week. One other is expected to die.

Disease Lurks in Skins of Fruits

Danger of disease, death perhaps, hides on the surface of every piece of fruit, and the rosy cheek of the apple or the purple covering of the grape may be using its attractiveness only to lure you on to your doom.

This startling state of affairs is laid before the public in a report recently issued by Dr. B. Ehrlich, a physician of Strassburg, who has just concluded a series of experiments at the Institute of Hygiene and Bacteriology in the university of that city.

That the infection of fruit with bacteria to such an extent as the report of Dr. Ehrlich shows will be a general surprise even in these days, when we are suspicious of the water, the street car strap, the public drinking cup, and practically everything we come in contact with.

MILLIONS OF BACTERIA.

But that half a pound of cherries should be carrying around 12,000,000 bacteria, each one of which may be aiming to destroy your life, with a good chance of succeeding, is a bit of startling information.

"Wash all fruit thoroughly," says Dr. Ehrlich, and it may come that Chicago will have to add this warning to its present "Boil the water."

The variety of diseases that can be carted along in this manner is surprising, but the most fatal plagues are classed in the list.

WORSE THAN VEGETABLES.

It has been known that vegetables could be held responsible for the transmission of much sickness, acting as vehicles for the germs of disease, indeed, there have been cases where epidemics have been traced to the vegetables, but much of the danger of this was neutralized by the cooking of the food. However, that fruit, which usually is eaten practically in its original state, holds so great a peril is a more serious matter.

Few are in the habit of washing fruit, and still fewer remove the skins or peel. Thus the bacteria has every possible chance to enter the system and do his deadly work.

In the condition in which it is placed upon the market, the surface of fruit is almost always unclean; on the surface millions of microscopic creatures exist. It has already been proven that in certain cases cholera, typhus and tuberculosis have been transmitted in this way. The danger can be partially obviated by peeling or washing the fruit.

STARTLING FIGURES OBSTAINED

In order to determine the degree of uncleanliness in market fruit, Dr. Ehrlich washed fruit of various kinds and then ascertained by a reliable process the numbers of bacteria thus removed. In this manner he found that 200 grams (about half a pound) of the fruits examined supported upon their surface bacteria in the following numbers: Huckleberries, 400,000; damsons, 470,000; mirabels (yellow plums), 700,000; pears, 800,000; gooseberries, 1,000,000; garden strawberries, 2,000,000; raspberries, 4,000,000; grapes, 8,000,000; currants, 11,000,000, and cherries, 12,000,000.

These figures teach how necessary it is that all fruit should be cleaned before it is eaten. In view of his experiments, Dr. Ehrlich recommends that before fruit is eaten it should always be thoroughly washed, preferably in running water, and that the washing should be repeated when dry matter is observed to be adhering to the fruit.

When a large badger was caught and killed recently in Hemingby, Lincolnshire, Eng., it was found to weigh 27 pounds.

Don't think we're "stuck" on Clothing, WE'RE NOT. We never Are. The high-class Clothing we handle is always in demand with fashionable dressers; neither is this sale an advertising invention---Like so many contemporary sales---"to work off" odd lots, broken lines and undesirable goods. It's a stern reality and necessary measure brought about by the immense quantities of clothing we handle each year, and our policy of selling at a loss in order that we may start each new season with a brand new stock. No "Ifs," conditions or reservations about this sale.

BEGINNING TOMORROW

We throw the gates ajar and invite the public to participate in this most remarkable bargain feast. We attempt no elaborate description of these mighty values. See the offers, they'll speak their own piece.

DECIDE TO BUILD A $20,000 CHURCH

Congregation of Concordia Lutheran Church to Erect House of Worship.

At a business meeting of the congregation of Concordia Lutheran church on Sunday, it was unanimously decided to build a church and a building committee was appointed to get specifications and report at a meeting to be held Sunday, February 1st. The committee consists of the trustees, Messrs. Charles Scherer, Christ. Doenges and Charles Rodenbeck, and Messrs. Julius Tonne, Carl Stein, Tobias Schnorr, Charles Krudop, William Franke, John Schlegel, Prof. Dorn, Mr. Hagermann and Mr. Floering.

It is proposed to erect a church that will cost in the neighborhood of $20,000 and having all modern improvements. The church will be built on a lot 130x165 feet, on the corner of Walton avenue and Hugh street, which is owned by the congregation. It will be of brick and stone and of the conventional architectural type.

Concordia congregation, of which Rev. August Lange is pastor, is a branch of St. Paul's and was formed about four years ago. Services have been held in the school hall since the building was completed, but the rapid growth of membership necessitated more room. The congregation is free from debt and can raise the sum required to build the church without much difficulty. Work on the new church will begin at the earliest possible date and it is expected that the edifice will be ready for occupation by the first of next year.

CLUBS THIS WEEK.

Miss Myrtle L. Northam is cashier of the bank of Walkerton.

J. J. Moore, of St. Louis, is to become secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Peru.

Auburn is to lose the plant of the Auburn Hardwood company, which has been consolidated with the Michigan Elm Hoop company and will be moved to Grand Rapids.

Otto Ross, of Steuben county, on trial at Auburn for criminal assault, was found guilty of assault and battery, the jury fixing a punishment of six months in jail and $100 fine.

Mrs. John French, of Bluffton, gave her eight-year-old boy a dose of carbolic acid, mistaking it for medicine which had been prescribed for the lad. The child spat most of the stuff out promptly and will probably live.

A one-day-old babe was vaccinated at Goshen Saturday afternoon as precaution against smallpox epidemic. The babe was born to Mrs. Milo Pippinger, whose husband, a railway mail clerk, has smallpox and has been in quarantine two weeks.

Julius Black and Perry Graves, prisoners in the Cass county jail, at Logansport, set fire to their mattresses, claiming their cells were cold and they did it to get warm. They were nearly choked to death by the smoke.

A team hauling a sleighing party of fifteen Plymouth young people, ran away Friday night, and many of them were injured. Miss Edith Kendall had a hip broken, and Miss Jessie Hawley, who sustained internal injuries, may die.

Burglars blew the safe in the Tucker hardware store at Cromwell, Noble county, early Saturday morning and got away with about $200. The safe was presumed to be burglar proof, and was formerly used by the now defunct Commercial bank of Cromwell.

By the will of Mrs. Metcafe Beck, of Warsaw, who was reputed to be the wealthiest widow in Kosciusko county, her handsome town residence, valued at $6,000 and $2,000 in cash are left to her family physician, Dr. I. B. Webber, who was not a relative, and who is made one of the executors of the will without bond. The rest of the estate goes to relatives.

Harry Newell, arrested for burglary by Baltimore and Ohio Detective John Kennelly, of Garrett, was sentenced to prison Saturday by Judge Adair at Albion. Newell is twenty-nine years of age and claims he was born in Fort Wayne, but left this city twenty years ago with his father, who is a carpenter.

Harry Gulmyer, the Elkhart dentist who shot Miss Lulu Barney, his sweetheart, will be taken to the reformatory at Jeffersonville tomorrow to begin his indeterminate sentence of from two to fourteen years. He received his sentence stoically, making no reply when Special Judge Deahl asked if he had anything to say why the judgment of the court should not be pronounced upon him.

Mrs. S. Rose, of Van Wert, Ohio, is visiting friends in the city.

FARMER BADLY HURT.

William Ash, a farmer living six miles north of the city on the Leo road, was thrown from a sleigh while returning from the city Sunday and badly hurt. Near Mr. Ash's home the horse ran away and in crossing a bridge dashed the cutter again the iron railing. Mr. Ash was thrown out and the cutter was completely wrecked. Mr. Ash was stunned for a time, but finally reached home. He sustained two broken ribs, besides many painful bruises.

Mrs. A. B. Morrison and daughter, Miss Harriet, of Decatur, spent Sunday in the city, the guests of Judge and Mrs. W. J. Vesey.

A sleigh load of young people spent Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Gillie, five miles east of the city. Cards and dancing were the amusements of the evening and refreshments followed.

Columbia City Post: Thomas Gallagher came out from Fort Wayne this afternoon to visit friends. He is growing some stronger and the cancer growth of the lower lip is seemingly getting much better.

Decatur Democrat: Miss Gertrude Barber, living south of the city, left this morning for Fort Wayne, where she will enter Hope hospital and study to become a nurse. Miss Barber is a popular young lady and no doubt will make a success of her present calling.

The Telephone club, which is composed exclusively of ladies, enjoyed a sleigh ride to New Haven Saturday afternoon and a supper later with Mrs. T. M. McGee. In the evening cards were a part of the diversions, the first prize going to Mrs. E. J. Longfield and the consolation to Mrs. James Hayes. The Telephone club meets fortnightly, but Saturday's affair was special on account of that day being the anniversary of Mrs. McGee, the hostess.

REV. FRANCIS NIGSCH GOES TO OTTAWA, O.

Founder and Pastor of Church of the Precious Blood Leaves City.

Rev. Francis Nigsch, C. PP. S., founder and pastor of the Precious Blood congregation in Bloomingdale, Sunday announced to the members of his congregation that his superiors had seen fit to transfer him to another field and that he would go to Ottawa, O., in the near future to take charge of a recently formed parish. His successor is Father Hamer, C. PP. S., who arrived Sunday to assume charge.

The announcement after mass Sunday was a profound surprise to the congregation as no hint of the change about to be made had been given previous to the announcement. Father Nigsch bade farewell to his parishioners in the morning and the deepest feeling was manifested on the part of pastor and congregation.

Father Nigsch founded Precious Blood church about five years ago and has built up one of the strongest churches in the diocese. He recently completed the erection of a hall and school building and has a fine church and parochial residence. He has always taken an active interest in public affairs and was prominent in the movement for street pavements and other improvements on the north side. Father Nigsch is greatly beloved by his congregation and enjoys the highest respect of the people of the north side.

His successor, Father Hamer, has been a member of the faculty of St. Joseph's college, and is well fitted for the place to which he has been appointed.

A fire originating in the office of Dr. A. K. Hammond on the second floor of No. 133 West Columbia street from an over-heated stove caused damage amounting to $200 Saturday about midnight. The blaze was discovered by Patrolman Lavanway. The building is owned by Byron Hattersley.

Rev. J. F. Delaney Sunday announced to members of St. Patrick's congregation that $4,000 of the indebtedness of the church had been paid off during the year and expressed his hearty appreciation of the co-operation of his parishioners in the work. Father Delaney contemplates the erection of a hall for social purposes similar to Library hall as soon as conditions warrant undertaking the project.

MEMORIAL SERVICES HELD.

Memorial services in honor of departed members were held yesterday afternoon at Berry Street M. E. church by lodges Nos. 19, 36 and 50, Ancient Order of United Workmen, and Degree of Honor lodges Nos. 23 and 29, No. 2 being unable to participate on account of the funeral of a member of the branch. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. K. Waits and other addresses were given by W. A. Ferris, Carl Yaple, Frank Hills, Ronald Dawson, Mrs. J. P. Merrilat and Mrs. Warner, representing the different societies. Musical numbers were rendered by Robert Cook, Dr. Harriet Macbeth and Messrs. Haddon and Phelps.

MRS. WELLS' FUNERAL.

Many friends attended the funeral of Mrs. Jessie R. Wells, which took place yesterday from the late residence on Park avenue. The service at the residence was conducted by the ladies of the Degree of Honor, Tribe of Ben Hur and the auxiliary of the machinists' union. Many beautiful floral offerings were sent. Lieutenant Governor Gilbert sent an exquisite wreath and the democratic members of the house of representatives a large floral basket. Representative J. M. Cravens, Mr. Wells' seatmate in the assembly, also sent an offering and beautiful sprays were sent by Senator and Mrs. S. B. Fleming, Senator and Mrs. Lew V. Ulrey, and Representatives Michael Sheridan and H. L. Somers. Pieces came also from Mr. Wells' shopmates of the Pennsylvania machine shops, the International Association of Machinists, Tribe of Ben Hur, Court 96; Fraternal Order of Eagles, the Degree of Honor and the Ladies' Auxiliary, I. A. M., and from Mr. Wells' father and brothers, who came from Pennsylvania to attend the funeral. The choir of the Third Presbyterian church and Concordia Singing society rendered selections.

NEW WAYNE CLUB IS FORMALLY OPENED

Reception Saturday Evening With Fine Program and Good Attendance.

The opening reception of the new Anthony Wayne club held Saturday evening proved a most pleasurable occasion, the attendance being large and the program an enjoyable one. Music, luncheon and speeches served to entertain the members in a most acceptable manner.

The event had been planned by the directors and it included musical numbers by the Haydn and Linden quartets, a solo by Mr. Lange and a duet by Messrs. Riblet and Curdes. All were applauded to the echo. President Fox made a brief address, in which he expressed the hope that there would be a sustained interest in the club in order that it might be a social success as an organization. S. M. Foster urged upon members the necessity of "dropping in" often, not merely to patronize the establishment, but in order to meet other members and enjoy a better acquaintance with fellow-citizens. Charles McCulloch spoke along a similar line.

The luncheon served by Caterer Rankin was a most tempting affair, skillfully gotten up and faultlessly served. During the evening the members made an examination of the merits of one of the voting machines now before the public.

WEALTH GOES TO WIDOW . .

San Francisco, Jan. 17.—Considerable speculation has arisen as to the effect the death of little Alice Tevis will have on the disposition of the property left by her father, Hugh Tevis, and the late Mrs. Susan B. Tevis, wife of Lloyd Tevis. The Call says that in accordance with the will made by Hugh Tevis shortly before his death, almost his entire estate of $4,000,000 will pass to the widow, Mrs. Cornelia Baxter Tevis. When the late Susan B. Tevis died she left a large portion of her estate, estimated at $2,500,000, to her granddaughter, Alice Tevis. Under the laws of California this sum will now pass to the little son of the late Hugh Tevis and Mrs. Cornelia Baxter Tevis.

MINISTER'S SNAKE STORY.

Dr. Watkins, the veteran missionary, who has just returned from a four months' evangelical trip through the outlying states, tells a strange story of a wonderful snake which he killed in an old, abandoned shaft of a mine down in the state of Guerrero.

"My attention was attracted one day," says Mr. Watkins, "by the horrified cries of an Indian miner who came running toward me, his face ghastly with fright, and the perspiration dripping like rain drops from his brow. The man rushed up and cast himself at my feet, where he lay trembling and gasping. As soon as he was able to get his breath he told me that he had been seized by a horrible monster, which had suddenly sprung upon him from one of the hidden recesses of the mine, and that he had narrowly escaped being drawn down in its embrace.

"My curiosity was aroused and I proceeded to the mouth of the shaft with the man as soon as I could induce him to return. We looked down, but in the dense obscurity could see nothing. Drawing my revolver I bade the man go down into the shaft a way, assuring him that no harm would befall him, as I would follow close with my cocked revolver ready for use.

"The miner did as I commanded, and had gone down for a number of feet when a huge and indescribably hideous head with wide open mouth shot up. The jaws of the creature were wide open, showing its sharp-fanged teeth, its mouth looking large enough easily to take a man down at one gulp.

"The miner screamed with terror, and I feared he would lose his hold and fall, but he clung desperately to the ladder, while I thrust the barrel of the revolver full into the creature's mouth and fired. With a tremendous hiss it dropped its head, and then we saw it was a huge serpent like unto nothing I had ever heard of before.

"As its struggling body came into my view I fired again, and the snake slipped from the ledge on which it had stretched itself, fell with a squashy thud to the bottom of the shaft, where we could hear it thrashing about in struggles which momentarily grew weaker and finally ceased altogether. Then we went below, fastened a rope about the body of the reptile and hoisted it to the surface.

"There was then unfolded before our eyes the most hideous creature man could ever dream of. Its head was like the huge stone head of a frightfully carved Chinese dragon. Its body about the middle was as large as a man's thigh, and its length was so great that I dare not say how many feet it measured. I very much regretted being unable to preserve the skin and bring it back for the study of scientists, but I was compelled to leave it behind."—Pittsburg Gazette.

NOT TRUE HEROISM

To "Grin and Bear" Rheumatism a Relic of the Past.

Grit your teeth a minute while you listen to this story. If you have Rheumatism it is because you have an excess of Uric acid, which has clogged your blood, the same as floating ice does a river, only the Uric acid poisons in addition. You cannot be freed from Rheumatism until this Uric acid is dispelled. It can be dispelled because we have done it and are doing it every day with Athlophoros.

We have found the action the quickest when the pain is the greatest.

With half a bottle and in twenty-four hours Athlophoros has enabled men to get out of bed and go to work. There is no need to stand pain.

We say it advisedly. One bottle of Athlophoros will show if it will act on you. If it does you good you will thank us for belittling your heroism. If it does not do you good we hold ourselves ready to give your case special consideration and advice without charge.

The Athlophoros Co., New Haven, Conn., will send a bottle for one dollar if your druggist doesn't keep it.

EMULSION
of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites

This emulsion is made right here in our laboratory. Every part of the work is done with precision according to the United States Pharmacopoeia requirements, which are the standard for all pharmacal compounding.

No doubt some of the advertised brands of Cod Liver Oil Emulsion have merit, but none of them could contain more of the essential ingredients or be made with more skill.

In actual use by our customers this emulsion, as we make it, gives results superior to any that we observe from other emulsions.

We believe it to be the most valuable Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil to be had and guarantee it to be satisfactory or money back. Price, $1.00.

Decatur Journal: H. Mann and wife returned to Fort Wayne Saturday morning after a week's visit in Decatur, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. Thompson.

TWO SPLENDID MEETINGS HELD

Dr. Wharton Addresses Large Audience of Men at the Masonic Temple.

AN IMPRESSIVE SERMON

Baptist Church Packed Sunday Night--Overflow Meeting Was Necessary.

Two splendid meetings that in point of attendance and interest must have a place among the most notable evangelistic services in the city in recent years attended the efforts of Rev. Dr. Henry M. Wharton in Fort Wayne yesterday—the men's meeting at Masonic Temple at 2:30 o'clock and the regular evening service at the First Baptist church.

REV. HENRY M. WHARTON, D. D.

By far the largest crowd that has yet heard Dr. Wharton in this city pressed into the Baptist church for the evening worship. Long before 7:30 o'clock every seat in the big auditorium was occupied, extra chairs were brought into requisition, the space at the rear was packed by people standing, and the stream of humanity was still coming. That none might be turned away, Dr. Wharton announced an overflow meeting in the lecture room of the church, and here Rev. A. K. Zartman and Rev. J. W. Bailey conducted the service.

Rev. J. N. Field gave the opening prayer and Mrs. Clara Zollars Bond and Miss Gill sang a duet, "I Know My Heavenly Father Knows." For the scripture lesson Dr. Wharton read Acts 11, and Prof. Geiger, who leads the song service, sang "Give Me Thy Heart."

ONLY TWO SIDES.

Dr. Wharton's text was Exodus 32:26: "Who is on the Lord's side?" He said in part:

"There are only two sides to this matter—the Lord's side and the devil's. There is no half-way ground. Now, that is not a dictum of mine; it is the word of the Lord It's a solemn thing to realize tonight that you and I, with whatever influence we may possess, are either on the side of the Lord or on the side of the devil. In a little village where I was pastor years ago a physician, who was morally a good man, took exception to that statement when I made it. I told him it was true; that I could prove it. I said to him: 'Now, there are some young men in this town, and when I try to bring them to Christ they point to you, doctor, and say you are one of the best men in town and you are not a Christian. They are going to the devil and point to you as their example!' My friends, you who are not Christians are counting every day for what you are worth on the side of the devil. The world is unfair. Let me give you a homely old country illustration. Take the Lord's pile of corn and the devil's pile of corn. Go to the devil's pile of corn and ask for a sample and they'll give you the finest ear in the lot; they'll parade out the most moral citizen in town who is not a Christian. Now, go to Christ's pile of corn and the world will pick out the meanest scrawniest nubbin in the pile; they'll pick out the most perfect hypocrite in the city and exclaim: 'There's a sample of your Christians!'

WHAT IT MEANS.

"Now, let us see what it means to be on the Lord's side. It means to believe on him and do what he tells you. That's all there is to it. 'If you believe on me, confess me before the world, unite with my people, follow my teachings and come out from the world.'

"Why, one has to ask among some church members today 'who are on the Lord's side?' When I see church members at card parties, and dances, and in saloons, I can't help asking, 'Whose side are you on?' A lady in Atlanta said to me: 'Tell me the difference between the church and the world; I see church members at the theater, at the ball rooms and at card parties.' I had to say, 'These church members are not the best representatives of Jesus Christ,' and I think you will agree with me that I was not unduly harsh in my statement.

FIGHT IS GOING ON.

"Why, if as you left this house tonight, you should see on the street a fight in progress between Christ and the devil, whose side would you take? 'Christ's, most assuredly,' you answer. Well, my friend, the fight is going on every day. Which side are you on? What's the advantage in being on the devil's side? Most of us here have been on both sides. Most of us tried the devil's side for years. I think I served the devil about as faithfully as possible until I was converted and if there is any advantage there I never found it.

"Some people think they are so smart they do not have to be Christians. I remember when I was admitted to practice as a lawyer I thought the little law I didn't know wasn't worth knowing. One of my first cases was in defense of a woman charged with infanticide. When I got through I left the court room feeling that I didn't know anything and believing the whole world knew it. I succeeded in getting for my client a verdict of murder in the first degree, but the judge set it aside—mainly, I suppose, on the ground of incompetency of defendant's counsel. Do you know the biggest fool in the world is the fool who doesn't know anything and doesn't know that he doesn't know anything? I recall the instance of the smart young man just home from college who sat at the table where his father was preparing to carve the two roast ducks for dinner. 'Father, you think there are just two ducks there, don't you?' 'Yes, my son; I know it.' 'But, I tell you, there are three,' said the smart young man. 'Here is one, isn't it? And this one is two, isn't it? And one and two make three.' 'Very well, son; I'll eat this one, your mother will eat that one, and you can have No. 3.'

OLD BOOK WILL STAND.

"Why, I expect there are people here tonight who believe they know more than this old bible. The son comes home from college, finds his old father reading the bible, and says, 'Father, you're wasting your time; we've been studying science and things and we find that the bible belongs to a past age; it will not do for today.' Holding aloft the blessed book, the father replies, 'My son, this book was the guide of my youth, the strength of my manhood, and it's the hope of my old age. I'll not discard it now.' My friends, you can't please the devil better than to try to laugh that old book out of existence. Do you know that it is the only thing the Lord says shall stand? You and I will soon be gone, the world will pass out of existence, but the Lord declares that his word shall endure forever.

ON THE RIGHT SIDE.

"Let us see what is the advantage of being on the Lord's side. Well, first, you are on the right side. There's everything in that. Then it puts you where you are of some account. Father, if you are not a Christian you might as well sing psalms to a dead horse as to talk to your son about religion. Mother, you might as well try to fly as to attempt to bring your child up correctly if you are not a Christian.

"Then, if we are on the Lord's side we can claim his protection. Days of pain and sorrow and trial will come. It's a precious thing to be able to go to the Lord and be certain of protection in times like these. But 'the face of the Lord is against them that do evil.' In the Cuban insurrection some years ago an American, sentenced to be shot as a spy, though innocent, appealed to the United States consul for protection. When all else failed and just before the shot was to be fired the consul appeared, wrapped the stars and stripes about the doomed man and dared them to fire on that flag. It saved his life, and O, when a poor sinner comes to Christ he wraps about that soul the blood-stained banner of the cross and all hell shall not prevail against it.

ANOTHER ADVANTAGE.

"Then, another advantage: It gives us the best work in the world to do. It helps us to live right. Do you know there is nothing so good for the health as genuine religion? Some people only have a sham case—a suspicion of religion. It's these varioloid cases that do harm to the cause.

"Then, if you are on the Lord's side, when you come to die you will find yourself more than conqueror. Like a protecting mother, the Saviour will gather you in his great, strong arms, your head pillowed in his breast, and all will be well. O friend, will you say tonight, 'I'll take my stand on the Lord's side?' "

Concluding his sermon, Dr. Wharton sang "Christ is All." It was given without accompaniment, but with much effectiveness.

A GREAT AUDIENCE.

When one takes into account the fact that ladies are vastly in the majority as attendants at religious services as a rule, it must be granted that only unusual power and interest can combine to bring together a congregation made up of fully seven hundred men and boys gathered to hear the gospel message. Yet that is precisel what occurred at Masonic Temple Sunday afternoon when Rev. Dr. Wharton conducted his second service for men exclusively.

The scene was an inspiring one. Men from every walk in life—the business man and the professional man, the artisan, the clerk and the laborer contributed toward the making up one of the most remarkable religious assemblages ever seen in Fort Wayne. Every seat in the lower floor of the theater was occupied, but a few chairs remained vacant in the balcony, and upon the stage a big chorus led in the singing which made the great building resound with gospel melody. The audience was much larger than that of a week ago.

Following the opening song service led by Prof. Geiger, Rev. J. Budman Fleming offered prayer, and the Haydn and Linden quartets united in singing "Where Will You Spend Eternity?" Dr. Wharton read Ps 1 as the scripture lesson, expounding it as he proceeded, and making an adaptation of its significance to the lives of men today. Mr. Geiger, the Haydn and the inden quartets each gave another musical number preceding the sermon. Alfred Holsworth presided at the organ.

WANTED—MEN.

Dr. Wharton's subject was "Wanted—Men," and he selected his text from Proverbs 8:4—"Unto You, O men, I call." In part he said:

"I think if I were asked to put at the top of the column the world's greatest want I should say, 'Men.' There are plenty of things going about today with trousers on that are not men. Napoleon when asked the greatest need of France, replied: 'Good mothers.' Well, you and I had good mothers—God bless them. Some of them are with us yet, as loving and tender as ever; and many of them have gone before, and above the battlements of heaven are waiting longingly for their boys.

"Well, what sort of men are needed? First, God wants men of heart. This is an age when business life is a struggle for existence—a cut-throat, knock-down-and-drag-out experience with everybody for himself. God wants men who can feel for another—men who can sympathize with one who has fallen, a sympathy that doesn't expend itself in mere breath, but a sympathy that goes farther than that and extends real helpfulness. The New York business man who had failed in business and lost all took new courage when his dear wife proposed to bake pies and he went out upon the street to sell them. An acquaintance driving by in his carriage stopped in amazement and said: 'I heard you had failed, but I didn't know it was so bad as this. Indeed, you have my heartfelt sympathy.' 'O, confound your sympathy; buy a pie!' was the retort. That's the kind of sympathy we need! Not the kind of man who is always sizing you up and figuring how he can get his hand in your pocket, but the man of heart who will lift a weight of sorrow, dry a tear and bring a joy and a courage to your heart!

MEN OF BRAINS NEEDED.

"Then, God wants men of brains. Do you know there are a few sapheads going around believing that if a man has religion he mustn't have any sense? My friends, the most splendid intellects in this world are the ones dedicated to God. There can be no higher purpose to which intellect can be directed than serving the Master. Life has a higher purpose than the mere accumulation of wealth. It's a mistake to pile up a lot of money and then go into the other world, leaving it for somebody else to go to the devil with!

O, if you have a good mind, let it be used to the greatest good. God bless the man who can see beyond his shirt collar—the man of broad mind and tender, loving heart, who can think beyond his own immediate circle and do something for the good of others! I'll point you to a splendid example of this sort of man; he's in the white house now. It's Theodore Roosevelt—a man of lofty intellect and tender heart, and both are dedicated to God!

NECESSITY OF COURAGE.

"Then God wants men of courage—men of nerve. It requires courage for the soldier to face the dangers of the battlefield, but I tell you it takes more courage for the man to stand up and do right on life's battlefield! I was a confederate soldier, but I thank God we have gotten far enough away from the civil war to take each other by the hand. And where you find a man with that old, unforgiving spirit rankling in his heart today, let me tell you you find a man who never smelled gunpowder. He was safe in the sutler's department, or else he was at home holding down a good office. This country has been blessed with many men of great heart and great courage, but I believe the greatest, noblest character that ever occupied the presidential chair was the lamented McKinley! (Applause.) And the best thing he ever did for the south was when for an hour at the Savannah exposition this magnificent man wore that old confederate button. The people of the south appreciated that act—they knew it came from the kindness of his great soul. Around McKinley's bier mourned both the north and the south. I thank God for the Spanish-American war. It demonstrated that the south is as loyal to the stars and stripes as the north. And today, if you are seeking for a hero, you are not at all particular whether you select George Dewey, of Vermont, or Fitzhugh Lee, of Virginia! (Applause.) Yes, or another hero—Hobson—a double hero—hero of the Merrimac and hero of the merry smack! (Laughter and applause.)

GRANT AND JACKSON.

"Stonewall Jackson, brave and good, laid his heart and his head at the feet of Jesus. He was a man of tremendous courage. After the battle of Cedar Mountain some officers were discussing whether or not Stonewall Jackson was a Christian. One of them said, 'Well, I don't know whether he is a Christian or not, but if Stonewall Jackson ever makes up his mind to go to heaven, all hell won't keep him out of it!' He was a man of courage. And Grant, the magnificent silent soldier. I think the greatest thing he ever did was not when he supplied rations to our starving camp; not his achievement at Appomatox; not when he forbade Andrew Johnson hanging Lee for treason—but the act occurred upon his tour around the world, when he made this response to the president of France, who had invited him to witness a race on Sunday: 'Neither the customs of my country nor the tenets of my religion will permit me to attend races on the Sabbath day.' Man of courage!

The kind of men we want are men of nerve; men who will stand up and face the evils of the world; men who will stand by the boys as they're growing up amid the evil influences of the day.

SALMON OR CODFISH?

"Then God wants men of principle. Do you know what principle is? It's the thing that will make me do the same in Fort Wayne that I do in my own home. Out on the western coast a citizen caught a beautiful specimen of salmon, and he determined to present it to the governor. He placed the salmon in a box, and while he was preparing to take it to the governor's house some mischievous boys took out the salmon and substituted a codfish. Without examination the man took the box to the governor, made a little speech of presentation, and opening the box, saw instead of the pretty salmon a codfish. Embarrassed beyond measure he returned home, placed the box upon the porch and entering the house, said: 'Wife, that wasn't a salmon; it was a codfish.' 'No,' replied the wife, 'it is a salmon.' 'Well, you just come out here and I'll prove to you that it is a codfish.' By this time the boys had replaced the salmon in the box, and when the man opened it he said: 'Well, that's very funny. Down here that fish is a salmon; up at the governor's house it is a codfish!' Now, my friends, some of you men are very good salmon in Fort Wayne, but you're codfish when you get away from home! (Laughter and applause.)

CHARACTER ESSENTIAL.

"Besides this, God wants men of character. You know the difference between reputation and character? Reputation is the advertisement of the goods; character is the stock of goods itself. After all, it doesn't matter how much wealth we have, or what we eat, or what we wear; you and I are valuable just in proportion to the excellence of our character.

"And what does God want with us? He wants to use us. Families today are suffering for want of good husbands and fathers. God wants you to be such a man that your children can say with pride, 'My father is a Christian.' He wants better husbands. He wants us to stand by the side of the woman we promised before God to love, honor and protect. He wants better sons. What can comfort a mother whose heart is broken over a dissipated son? God help the young man who goes around with nothing better to do than smoke cigarettes and tell smutty stories! We ought to be pure in heart and pure in mouth.

"And what else does he want? He wants us in church. Perhaps there are men here today who were once active in church work, but who have strayed away. O, my friends, you have deserted the old flag! Come back! Our business houses and our shops are crowded with men, but our churches are deserted. God wants you to take your place in His church. Will you hear the call?"

J. V. FARWELL COMING.

Before Dr. Moffat dismissed the audience a large number of men arose in response to a request for those first who had once been active church members and would now resume their old places in Christian work, and second for those who, while not yet members of any church, professed faith in Christ.

Dr. Wharton announced another men's meeting next Sunday, and stated that the venerable J. V. Farwell, the mililonaire Chicago merchant, would be present to assist in the service.

The evening services this week will be held in the First Baptist church on Monday and Tuesday; thereafter at the First Presbyterian church. Afternoon meetings at 2:30 in Plymouth church until Friday, when they will be transferred to Grace Reformed church.

THE REFORMER,

BY CHARLES M. SHELDON.

(Copyright 1901, by Charles M. Sheldon.)

place like Hope House; you hesitate to commit your future to me because of the physical losses, the absence in our future of these physical luxuries we have both known, into which we have been born—is that it? Your love for me is not strong enough to make this loss seem insignificant—is that true?"

It was a blunt question, and he purposely put it bluntly, perhaps more so than was fair to her. Over her face the color deepened, and she evidently felt the implied reproach in his summing up of her hesitation.

"That is not quite the truth."

"A part of it?"

"You have no right to force such a question upon me."

"I have a right to know the whole truth."

"You would not understand"—

"I would understand everything if you loved me enough to go with me without question."

"Love does not mean being unreasonable."

"Yes, Luella, it does, at least this far—that love will trust where it cannot always give reasons."

She was silent again.

He took a step nearer.

"Luella, one question only: If I decide that I must go to live in Hope House, will you go with me? Or will you refuse on account of the physical and social loss?"

She looked at him steadily at first, although her color deepened and her lips trembled.

"You have no right to ask such a question."

"I have—the right of a man who loves you."

"Then I will say not go, not for the reason you think, but"—

"It is not necessary to explain," John Gordon answered sadly. "Luella, it is plain to me that you do not love me."

"You have no right to make any such test!" she exclaimed passionately.

She stood up and faced him proudly, and he simply looked into her eyes a moment and then turned and walked out of the room. This time he did not look back. As he closed the door, Luella Marsh fell upon her knees by the side of the table, exclaiming:

"God pity me! God have mercy!"

John Gordon went out of the house calmly enough, although his heart was torn with passionate conflict. As the current of the city swept him on, there surged up in his soul hot anger that he had ever loved this woman who could not have the test of faith in the man who loved her. But it was at this crisis that his real religious experience rescued him from wreck. Had it not been for that this story had never been told. But as he went his way that day his anger fell, and in its place there grew up a tender memory that left no room for harsh judgment.

But for the present he was overwhelmed by the result. He had put Luella Marsh into the altar place of a proud man's affection. Every day since the time she had pledged her heart to his he had thanked God for what had been given him. Her apparent response to his ambitions, especially noticeable in her correspondence during his absence, had exhilarated him. To find now that she would not trust her life to him because he had chosen a career of hardship and loss of physical things struck him the severest blow he had ever experienced. The failure on the part of his father and sister to understand or sympathize became insignificant compared with this event. As he walked along he began to torture himself with questions. Had he made a mistake in taking her answer as final? Had he, as she said, no right to make such a test? Was it asking too much of any woman to ask her to leave a home of luxury to which she had been accustomed from birth and go at once into surroundings that were repulsive to her? And then she had confessed that she did not love the people as he did, but—was that an unpardonable sin? Yet he had felt when she said it as if an impassable gulf had suddenly been dug between them. Had he acted as a man should act who has so much at stake as in this case?

"I do not ask you to marry me unless you can trust everything to me."

The torture of these questions was so keen that after walking several blocks he turned to go back.

"I must see her again," he kept saying. "I cannot let it end here."

He went up the steps and rang the bell. The servant who came to the door eyed him curiously.

"Miss Marsh has gone out," she said, and John Gordon at first did not believe her until he remembered that the carriage was standing at the curb when he left Luella and that she had said something about going out to the park before ten.

He slowly went down the steps, and when he was on the sidewalk he paused.

Perhaps in all his life he had never felt so lonely as at that moment. The consciousness that his father and sister and now the woman who had promised to be his wife had repudiated his life smote him with a sense of personal abandonment that was keen and searching.

For a moment he felt so completely alone that he let go of every motive for action. The city and the overwhelming thought of its misery and sin and selfishness enraged him. "Let us eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die!" he cried out, and nothing at that moment would have saved John Gordon except the fact that what he had mentioned to his father and sister and Luella as his religious experience was the greatest fact so far in his career. As he stood still there at the foot of the steps gradually his spirit grew calmer. The consciousness of God in his life grew stronger. The purpose of his ambition cleared. And after a little while he started on, knowing that his life work would not be changed in its main intent by anything that had so far happened. Only as he went on he also knew that he could not and would not be the same man and do the same things in some parts of his earthly vision as if Luella Marsh had decided to walk with him in the way. It was also quite clear to him that without being able to give a good reason for it he was not closing the chapter with Luella yet. He certainly entertained the idea of her still coming into his life. It was not from his interview with her that he drew any such hope. But he knew that he did not yet consider her action as final, or possibly it was his own action that was not final.

He stopped at a corner, and the sight of a street name on a car going by decided his next movement.

"I'll go and take tea at Hope House," he said to himself, and took the car, noting, by the time, that he would reach the house just as the little family of residents were in the habit of sitting down to their evening meal.

Hope House stood in the midst of its desert of tenements and its corner saloons and vaudeville halls like an oasis of refuge and strength. Saloons to right and left and front and rear, with piles of brick and wood and rubbish flung together in chaotic, tumbled heaps, with openings for human beings who streamed in and out of court and alley and doorway or sat in pallid, huddled masses on the stoops or curbing formed the frame in which Hope House was set, unique and alone.

John Gordon left the car one block from Hope House and walked down past five saloons in the block until he came to the arched entrance of the house. Going into the little court, he breathed a sigh of relief at the sight of the familiar oleander tubs that stood against the outer wall of the court, and marveled at their ability to blossom with such freshness in such surrounding.

"If oleanders ever had any fragrance in this part of the city, they must almost smell of beer and sewer gas," he said to himself as he went on into the broad hall that opened on the court. He was by no means a stranger to Hope House. Since his return from abroad he had been a frequent visitor and had been welcomed with that inner welcome that springs from well known common purposes.

"You are just in time!" called out a quiet but cheerful voice as John Gordon stepped into the doorway of the dining hall. "Miss Manning is absent. You may take her seat by me."

"I count myself fortunate," John Gordon replied as he took the seat, returning the greetings of those at the table.

"We were talking about you," said the head of the house, with her quiet but earnest manner.

"I'm sorry to interrupt the conversation," replied John Gordon.

"No interruption, we assure you. We are glad you came in, for you are the only person who can answer a question Mr. Ford just asked."

"Rather a personal question, Mr. Gordon," said Ford, a student from the university, who was a resident of several months' standing. "The question I asked Miss Andrews was this: 'What is Mr. Gordon going to do? Will he possibly come in here with us?'"

John Gordon did not answer the question at once. He knew the complete freedom of the social atmosphere of Hope House, especially at mealtimes, and understood well that his silence would not be misconstrued as discourtesy.

He looked around the circle of earnest, friendly faces at the table, and his gaze included, as it had many times before, the room itself, with its high, dark wainscoting, its few but choice portraits, its plain but attractive homelikeness; but, as on every other occasion, his look finally came back to the face of the head of the house, for she was the genius of the place.

Grace Andrews was in her thirty-sixth year. At the time John Gordon first met her at Hope House she had been in charge of the settlement for twelve years. Twelve years of association with desperate human problems such as those that swarmed like the people themselves had left on her face marks of that human, divine calmness that all great women bear who have loved the people. If Grace Andrews did not impress strangers or visitors as being great in any real sense, it was because the look of her face spoke of a quiet peace that so many people superficially associate with meekness, but do not consider as an element of power. The residents of Hope House understood all that, and the oldest residents understood it better than the youngest and had more unquestioned reverence for the greatness of Grace Andrews than those who had less knowledge of her.

It was with a deepening consciousness of what this woman was and of her wonderful life and influence that John Gordon came into her presence. He had met her during his university career when some special studies had taken him down to Hope House. And one of the first places he had visited on his return from abroad had been the dining room with its fellowship life presided over by that central figure that dominated the entire group. It was at that first meeting that he had frankly told her and the residents something of his religious experience and its bearing on his life work. It was that frank confidence that had led up to the question by Ford.

"Well?" Miss Andrews finally said as John Gordon seemed ready to speak after looking at her so intently. During his silence the conversation at the table had gone on in a quiet but natural fashion. Every one in Hope House always gave every one else perfect freedom for his personality, and no one felt at all disturbed when John Gordon did not reply at once to the student's query. They all paused in their talk when he spoke.

"I've been thinking of it. I would count it an honor to be part of your family." He spoke to Miss Andrews, but included all the table with a gesture. "I'm still in some doubt concerning my future. I am sure you are enough interested in me to care to know that I have left my own home. I am just at present without a permanent place of abode. Perhaps you would be willing to take me in."

He spoke somewhat lightly, but not without a certain seriousness that they all seemed to understand. Miss Andrews glanced at him quickly and said with a real tone of sympathy:

"We would not only give you a hearty welcome, Mr. Gordon, but count ourselves fortunate to have you with us."

"Thank you," he replied gratefully. "I would not come into the house, of course, except as one who would take the position of a learner. I have everything to learn and nothing to contribute. You would have to teach me the simplest duties of a resident, Miss Andrews. I at least would be a very willing and obedient pupil."

"I have no doubt of that," she replied, with a smile. "But the people who act that way are dangerously apt to be in a position to teach their teachers in time."

"I shall never be able to teach the teacher in Hope House," said John Gordon earnestly. Miss Andrews laughed, and the faintest tinge of color appeared on her cheeks. "We are all learners here. Let him who has not learned something today hold up his hand. Not a hand in sight. Oh, we are all in the primary class! The people are the alphabet of God. And we have not yet learned the alphabet."

The talk gradually circled the table, while John Gordon continued to tell Miss Andrews something in detail of the interview with his father and sister. After the meal was over the residents scattered to their work, but half a dozen with Miss Andrews and John Gordon lingered a few minutes in the library and living room, which opened out of the wide hall, next the old fashioned staircase which went up near the center of the room, for Hope House had formerly been an old family mansion, and it stood now in its solitary refinement of interior in complete contrast to every building in the dismal district now ruled and ruined by the human ruins that pleaded day and night for rebuilding until the souls of the residents grew weary with the burden, and God either grew daily farther away or closer by, in proportion as the workers in the settlement grew more and more to love the people or more and more to lose faith in their redemption.

When John Gordon finally went away, he had practically promised to become a permanent resident of Hope House. Something of John Gordon's family history was known to most of the residents, and there was enough of the romantic and unusual in such a decision as his to stir the imagination of the earnest young men and women who had thrown in their lot with Hope House and what it stood for in the city.

When John Gordon came out from the archway and turned into the street, it was after 9 o'clock. He walked along for half a dozen blocks, trying to realize what his life work would be in such a place. Whatever else it would be, he knew it would be a life that would demand inexorably all the manhood possible. As he stopped and looked back down the street and realized its wretchedness, its discomfort, its squalor, its moral filth, his heart cried out for strength, his soul felt compassion and anger and longing, and his love of the people, to his intense satisfaction, grew in spite of what they were and because of what they were.

He was still standing there, absorbed in his thought of future possibilities, when a man put his hand on his shoulder and said familiarly:

"John, do you want good company? I'm with you if you do."

"David!" cried John Gordon in astonishment. "How do you happen to be here?"

"Studying life, eh?" said David Barton as he put his arm within his friend's and walked on.

"But how does it happen that you"—

"Having a week's vacation. Harris told me I'd better go to Colorado. Been down here every night."

John Gordon walked on in deepening astonishment.

"Come up to the rooms and let us have a talk," said Barton, and John Gordon quietly agreed. They took a car and after riding two miles left the car, walked two blocks and came out on Park Boulevard, where David Barton, managing editor of the Daily News, had apartments.

When they were seated, David Barton turned a sharp, nervous, but kindly face toward John Gordon.

"Surprised to see me down in the region of Hope House? Great place,

Chicago a Hotbed of Billiard Activity ✤ Timely Sport Talk.

Devotees of the cue were never more active than at the present time, and pool and billiard players in many states state that "the good old days" when these games were at the zenith of their popularity are sure to return. Chicago is taking the lead in promoting attractions for cue manipulators, and in fact may be said to be outstripping New York as a gathering place for experts as well as for the rank and file of performers.

DR. HARLEY PARKER, CHICAGO'S CHAMPION AMATEUR, EXECUTING A HALF DRAW.

In the various academies in Chicago billiard tournaments for different classes of players are always in progress, and this is one of the reasons for the large number of new and young players of ability produced in the Windy City. Although billiards has been described as an "old men's game," the influx of fresh blood is exactly what is wanted to start a boom of long lasting effect.

There has long been hot rivalry in Chicago over the possession of the balk line championship title. Al Taylor, who recently jumped from the amateur to the professional class, and Dr. Harley Parker, a prominent amateur expert, were the leading rivals for the supremacy, and now that Taylor is a "pro," Dr. Parker is at the head of the list.

Taylor was rated by some as the best balk line player, but strong doubts exist as to whether or not he could take Dr. Harley Parker's measure in his (Parker's) present form. Harley has been going great guns of late and is averaging between ten and twenty every day. Parker shows improvement every week and is considered by far the best close if not the best all around balk line simon pure amateur player in Chicago.

A year ago Fred Conklin was voted the premier amateur, but lack of practice has sent him back several notches. This was shown in a recent two nights' handicap match, which he lost with an average of less than eight.

The Hanover club of Brooklyn is arranging a class A fourteen inch balk line tourney, 300 points up, to begin Feb. 2. The tournament will be held under the auspices of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, and the entries are: E. W. Garner, F. Poggenburg, Arthur Townsend, Martin Mullin, Charles Norris, F. C. Gardner and Charles Schmidt.

Norris is the present class A champion, and Martin Mullin is the Chicago millionaire who was formerly amateur champion of America.

Tommy Ryan has offered to teach Jack Munroe how to whip Jeffries. Ryan would willingly sacrifice his time for $5,000 down and $2,000 a lesson. Tommy is simply after the glory of bringing out a new champion. That's all. A. R. B.

Peter Duryea, manager of Patchen Wilkes farm here, has shipped east from Lexington, Ky., The Abbot, 2:03¼, owned by J. J. Scannell, and Shadow Chimes, 2:05, and Amelia, 2:08½, owned by E. E. Smathers. They have been wintering at Patchen Wilkes farm and are in fine condition.

Ed Geers is to drive the sensational mares Lady Thisbe, 2:11¼, and Directum Spar, 2:11¼, on the circuit this season. They have been shipped to Memphis to Mr. Geers. They were driven to their records last season by Ben Kenny.

The average time for all the heats trotted and paced in the grand circuit of 1902 was 2:10½.

Topsie Wiley, by Judge Wiley, 2:16¾, dam Zella Coast, by Coastman, 2:08¾, has been purchased by J. M. Stanley, Chase, Ind.

Baseball Notes.

Manager Donovan of the St. Louis team announces that Arthur Nichols will be the Cardinals' first baseman next season.

Pitcher Brown, one of the crack pitchers of the Omaha staff, has been secured for the St. Louis Nationals.

Jack Chesbro, the star Pittsburg twirler, will coach the candidates of the Harvard baseball team this spring instead of the veteran Cy Young, who has acted in that capacity for several years.

An Apple Tree's Roots.

For the purpose of erecting a suitable monument in honor of Roger Williams, the founder of Rhode Island, his private burying ground was searched for himself and wife. It was found that everything had passed into oblivion. The shape of the coffins could be traced only by the carbonaceous matter. The rusted hinges and nails and a round wooden knot remained in one grave, while a single knot of braided hair was found in the other.

Near the graves stood an apple tree. This had sent down two main roots into the very presence of the confined dead. The larger root, pushing its way to the precise spot occupied by the skull of Roger Williams, had made a turn as if passing around it and followed the direction of the backbone to the hips. Here it divided into two branches, sending one along each leg to the heel, where both turned upward toward the toes. One of these roots formed a slight crook at the knees, which made the whole bear a striking resemblance to the human form.

The Offertory.

The offertory occasionally yields its humors. I can see no fun myself in dropping into the plate buttons or peppermint drops or gilded farthings. But these and other such like votive offerings occasionally come our way.

On one occasion a mild hint was given to a dirty looking verger when a small coin was carefully wrapped up in a bit of paper inscribed, "For a bath for a prominent church official." On another occasion, when the officiating clergyman had been somewhat bungling through a difficult piece, a similar piece of paper was marked, "For a singing lesson for the curate."

After a somewhat rambling discourse from one of my colleagues, who shall of course be nameless, the church warden told me that a man at the bottom of the church, when he offered him the plate, took out a sixpence and looked at it ruefully and then cast it in with the remark, "Well, you shall have it, old fellow, but it's a deal more than that sermon was worth."—Cornhill Magazine.

A Singular Method of Treatment.

A peculiar case of poisoning by a physician was that of Dr. Stephen Eotvos in Hungary many years ago. Eotvos undertook to hasten the death of patients whose cases he considered hopeless by putting them out of their misery, as he termed it, with fatal drugs. He encountered no opposition to his peculiar methods of benevolence while he practiced them on people of no particular standing, but when the doctor hastened the death of a well known land proprietor named Szlavy, who was slowly dying of cancer, the relatives of the dead man presented a violent protest and demanded the prosecution of Eotvos.

The physician declared on trial he was actuated by humane motives and had merely eased the journey of his victims to the inevitable goal. This defense was not accepted by the court. Eotvos was acquitted of malice, but found guilty of homicide without malice and sentenced to a long term of imprisonment.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—May wheat today opened ⅛@¼c higher to a shade lower, at 78⅞c to 78⅝c, under the conflicting influences of an apparently strong situation and heavy selling by a large firm. The selling having ceased, traders bid the market up to 78⅞c, influenced by firm cables, a decrease in the quantity on passage, small world's shipments and a decrease in Liverpool stocks. The advance tempted scattered selling, but at 79c the market steadied and gave evidence of a strong undertone. Local receipts were 69 cars, one of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 798 cars, making a total for the three points of 867 cars, against 390 last week and 609 a year ago.

May later advanced to 79¾c on purchases which augmented the accounts of the leading longs by 2,000,000 bushels. The close was strong ⅞c over Saturday at 79½@79⅝c.

The opening price of May corn was unchanged, at 43¾@43⅞c. Favorable weather, in absence of any marked demand, was sufficient to depress the price early to 43½c, where the market steadied. Receipts were 430.

The market later reacted in sympathy with wheat and closed steady, May a shade down at 43¾c.

Oats were fairly active and easy, chiefly on reports of liberal country acceptances of Saturday's bids. May opened⅛c to ¼c to ⅜c down, at 35⅜c to 35⅛@35¼c, rallied to 35½c in sympathy with the wheat strength, and then reacted to 35⅜c. Receipts were 387 cars.

The provision market opened easy in sympathy with the decline in hogs, but steadied in the absence of selling pressure. May pork opened 10@12½c lower, at $16.35@16.50; May lard 5c down, at $9.42½, and May ribs, 5c depressed, at $9.02½.

THE CLOSE.

Prices at the close were as follows:

Wheat—May, 79½@79⅝c; July, 74⅞@74¾c.

Corn—Jan., 46⅞c; May, 43¾c; July, 42⅝c; Sept., 42⅜c.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Jan. 19.—Opening prices were generally higher than on Saturday's closing and there was a good volume of business. Chicago Great Western preferred B advanced a point and there were good fractional gains in Missouri Pacific, Southern Railway, Sugar, Amalgamated Copper and American Car. On the other hand Erie, Baltimore and Ohio, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific sagged a slight fraction.

The market became irregular after the opening. Advances in some of the specialties were not followed and prices sagged at some points. Chesapeake and Ohio, Amalgamated Copper, American car and Sloss-Sheffield Steel got up a point each; Delaware and Hudson 1½, New Jersey Central 2¼, Great Northern preferred 3¼ and International Power 4. Manhattan was heavy and lost nearly a point. The market fell into extreme dullness.

The indifference of buyers towards the market resulted in slow declines, which put prices of some stocks below last week. The advance of sterling exchange toward the gold export point and a firmer tone for money were repressive factors. Chicago Great Western preferred B reacted to below Saturday's figure and Colorado Fuel lost 1½. Chesapeake and Ohio continued to rise and Norfolk and Western, Illinois Central, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste Marie and Union Bag gained about a point.

Bonds were irregular.

The drop of 3½ in Colorado Fuel was the only wide movement. St. Louis and San Francisco and Chicago Great Western preferred B fell a point below Saturday. Renewed strength in Chesapeake and Ohio, which rose 1⅝c in all, steadied the market.

The tone of the market was listless and its fluctuations narrow and irregular. A rise of two points in St. Paul and Omaha after a long dormant period was the only feature.

The selling became more active and carried the whole market downwards. Rock Island lost 2⅝ and the preferred, Erie, Reading, St. Paul, Atchison, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, Hocking Valley, Louisville, Candadian Pacific, Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred, Brooklyn Transit and Sugar fell 1@1¾ under Saturday. The closing was quite active and easy.

NEW YORK PRODUCE MARKET.

New York, Jan. 19.—Butter—Receipts, 4,326 packages; market steady; state dairy, 19@25½c; extra creamery, 27c; held creamery, 19@26c; creamery, common to choice, 19@26c.

Cheese—Receipts, 542 packages; market firm; state full cream, fancy small colored, fall made, 14½c; late made, 13¾@14c; small white, fall made, 14¼@14½c; late made, 13¾c; large colored, fall made, 14½c; late made, 13¾c; large white, fall made, 14¼c; late made, 13¾c.

Eggs—Receipts, 7,058 packages; market easier; state and Pennsylvania, average best, 29c; western, fancy graded, 27c; western, poor to prime, 20@26c; refrigerated, 18@22c.

HELEN GOULD'S HOME LIFE.

Miss Helen Gould is still a young woman, for at thirty-five in this strenuous generation a woman is decidedly young. She is not a sentimental giver. There is heart in all she does, but no gush. Her charities are as sanely conducted as if they were a business enterprise, says Juliet Wilbur Tompkins in Everybody's Magazine.

The world has had little chance to know the personality of the philanthropist it has so praised and admired. To know her one must see Miss Gould in her country place, Lyndhurst, at Irvington-on-the-Hudson, where she spends half the year.

There she is seldom without visitors—not formal house parties, formally entertained, but friends, often self-supporting girls, who come for a week or six weeks, to visit on the simple basis of companionship. For these there are half a dozen horses in the stable, and a riding master comes up from New York to accompany and teach the less proficient.

On summer mornings Miss Gould and her guests will be up at half-past six, fortified with coffee, and off into the country lanes, riding hatless and shirt-waisted in the freedom of that early hour. It is not park riding—that is for her winter months in New York—but good, happy country galloping, with sometimes a brisk race against a shower by way of excitement. For Miss Gould fears thunder as some women do mice; there is no tranquil waiting under a tree for her when the cannonading begins.

Half-past nine sees her back again, ready for breakfast. In the quiet hours that follow, when the large correspondence has been disposed of and the chef's program for the day has been approved or revised, there is often reading aloud—of a serious order first, for Miss Gould belongs to the generation that has qualms of conscience at beginning the day with a novel. Perhaps it will be some book on trees, for she is deeply and intelligently interested in tree and plant life of every sort, and can tell the names of the strange ferns and orchids in her greenhouse as another might recognize mignonette and pansies.

The case of Kline vs. Wade was dismissed in the circuit court.

FIRST ENGINE IN ROUND HOUSE

No. 7255 Given a Ride on the New Turntable--Machinery is Perfect.

REPINE AS BAGGAGEMAN

Old Yard Conductor Seeks Easier Job After Many Years' Service.

At 11 o'clock this morning the first engine was taken into the new Pennsylvania round house, the chief object being to test the machinery of the immense electric turntable recently installed there. The engine was No. 7255, a freighter of the class P pattern, and Engineer W. Cunningham manipulated the throttle, while Conductor J. P. Haley and Brakeman I. N. Miller composed the crew which had charge of it. The levers of the turntable were handled by Asa W. Grosvenor, assistant engineer of maintenance of way. It will be several days before the round house will be in general use, the work out there having been delayed by the bad weather of last fall and the present winter, but everything possible is being done to open it this month. At 3 o'clock this afternoon another engine was placed upon the turntable and a picture taken of it.

THE SITUATION EAST.

A high official of one of the Boston roads, who has been in the service thirty years, says traffic conditions at present are the best he has ever known at this season of the year. Both through and local business is exceptionally heavy, and much of the former has been delayed by the severe congestion of traffic to which western roads have been subjected. Grain shipments are beginning to arrive from the west, and are abnormally heavy. He makes complaint as to rates. He says with the increased cost of labor and material that has come about during the past few months, and the increasing demand upon equipment for all railroads, it is manifestly inevitable that rates for transportation must be advanced. This is true in the east as well as in the west. He says he looks forward to the biggest railroad year in 1903, in the matter of traffic revenues, as well as in new construction and permanent improvements, that the country has ever known, and New England roads will get a big slice of this betterment. The Boston & Albany, coming into control of the New York Central, has given new life to the former road, and millions of dollars will be expended in improving its roadbed, getting rid of the heavy grades, eliminating curves and purchasing new equipment. The Boston & Maine, which controls the Fitchburg road, is making a move in the same direction, it being the intention of both these powerful corporations to bring New England roads and their equipment up to the grade of the trunk lines and Central Passenger association.

RETURNS TO OLD JOB.

A. W. Ireland is in the city preparing to move his family here to reside. Seven months ago Mr. Ireland became chief car inspector at Hamlet for the Pennsylvania company, but the position requires work on Sunday. This was displeasing to Mr. Ireland and he asked to be released. He will resume his old place as a carbuilder at the east shops in a day or two. C. S. Heisler, also a car builder, has been appointed inspector at Hamlet and has gone there to assume the duties of the office.

BECOMES BAGGAGEMAN.

John Repine, whose misfortune is known to the readers of these columns, went out on his first trip as baggageman on Pennsylvania train No. 21 this morning. This change is made at Mr. Repine's request because the work is less arduous than that of a yard conductor. In the latter position he has been succeeded by Alex. Thavenet, one of the old employes in the Pennsylvania yard service. Mr. Repine had been employed in the yards many years. Mr. Thavenet is sick at present and George Sunley has charge of the position temporarily.

THE ACCIDENTS.

Chris. Sutorius, an employe at the Pennsylvania coal docks, had a rib broken yesterday by a fall from a car to the dock floor. He also sustained some painful bruises about the side. Mr. Sutorius has not been employed at the docks very long.

Charles Mills, a machinist employed in the erecting department at the Wabash shops, had the index finger of his left hand nearly crushed off last Saturday. The injury will keep him from work for some time.

J. Muirhead of the Wabash machine shop, had his right thumb painfully crushed Saturday while removing a part of an engine's attachments.

The engine hauling Pennsylvania train No. 6 this morning met with an accident at Columbia City which disabled her and caused delay to that train and also to the incoming mail train, No. 18, which was closely following No. 6. No other damage was done.

William Hilgeman, machinist at the Pittsburg shops, injured one of his hands Saturday and is off duty as a result.

Matteo Lallo, employed as a laborer in the Pennsylvania yards, was knocked down Saturday afternoon by a passing engine and one of the wheels crushed the toe of one foot. He was taken to St. Joseph hospital. Lallo was at work just west of Lafayette street when the accident happened.

A Grand Rapids and Indiana engine got beyond control of the hostler at the Pittsburg round house yesterday morning and went into the turntable pit, crushing the tender and doing damage to itself. The wreck crew was called out and in two or three hours had removed the engine and repaired the pit.

WILL SUSPEND WORK.

Contractor W. C. Sproul, who is building the new Pennsylvania shops, informs the Sentinel he will suspend further work in that direction until the first of April, when he will put a big force in service and push the job to completion. This decision is the result of the cold weather. Further progress in the extension of the big shops eastward would mean the tearing down of a portion of the machine shop and there is too much work on hand in that department to allow an interference of this character. Mr. Sproul has completed the west end of the big shop and his men are now finishing up some minor work elsewhere preparatory to suspending operations here for the winter.

SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT.

The Nickel Plate has succeeded in opening the freight blockade and the embargo which was placed on eastbound "dead" freight some days ago has been practically removed. There is a vast number of cars on sidings awaiting power to move them still, but the situation is better than it was last week. The Pennsylvania has also made an improvement in the situation and the road is today practically clear of anything like a blockade. The movement, however, is very heavy.

RETURNS TO OLD PLACE.

H. C. Langhor is again an employe at the Pittsburg copper shops after an absence of two years, during which he was employed in another line of work. He will work in the airbrake department, where he had five years' experience.

A FUNERAL PARTY.

A special train of four cars bearing the remains of the mother of President L. T. Loree, of the Baltimore and Ohio, and a number of members of the family, including Mr. Loree, passed through the city at 4:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon en route to Logansport, where the deceased lady was buried today. The funeral party made the trip to Defiance over the Baltimore & Ohio.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

Machinist Martin Nagle has gone to Tilton to install some machinery in the Wabash shops.

E. J. Schlink, a flue cutter, has recovered from an illness which kept him from work a few days.

Ben Evers, a machine operator at Rhinesmith & Simonson's factory, is on duty after a week's illness.

The employes of the Fort Wayne Electric company will receive their semi-monthly earnings tomorrow.

The interlocking plant at the crossing of the Pennsylvania and the Grand Trunk, at Valparaiso, has been placed in operation.

Brakeman E. Morrison, of the Nickel Plate, who was off duty on account of sickness in his family, has returned to work.

The furnace operated by James Trythall and W. H. Morrison at the Pittsburg shops, which caved in last week, has been repaired.

The Illinois Central has absorbed the Kankakee & Southwestern railroad, which it has been operating under lease since 1881.

DISLOCATED HER SHOULDER.

Mrs. Johanna Soderholm, of Fergus Falls, Minn., fell and dislocated her shoulder. She had a surgeon get it back in place as soon as possible, but it was quite sore and pained her very much. Her son mentioned that he had seen Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised for sprains and soreness and she asked him to buy her a bottle of it, which he did. It quickly relieved her and enabled her to sleep, which she had not done for several days. The son was so much pleased with the relief it gave his mother that he has since recommended it to many others. For sale by all druggists. 1-14-1m

FREDERICK SCHULTZ DIES FROM INJURIES

Was Caught Beneath Caving Earth a Week Ago—Other Mortuary Matters.

Frederick Schultz, crushed beneath a huge mass of caving earth at the new Pennsylvania round house a week ago Saturday, died shortly after midnight at St. Joseph's hospital as a result of the accident. He was 38 years of age.

In the accident the unfortunate man sustained a fracture of the left leg and some internal injuries in addition to numerous bruises upon various parts of the body. He was making satisfactory improvement toward recovery until a day or two ago when symptoms of heart failure were manifested. His death was primarily due to the heart difficulty which ensued from the internal injuries.

Mr. Schultz was a native of Germany, but came to America at the age of 7 years. His home was at 947 Home avenue, where the remains were removed today. Surviving are the widow and four children, in addition to his aged father residing in Ohio. Mr. Schultz held membership in the Maccabees.

The funeral services will probably occur on Thursday.

MILLER.

Eugene S. Miller, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Miller, of 1330 Sinclair avenue, died at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon from marasmus at the age of three weeks.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at 8:30 from the residence and at 9 o'clock from the Church of the Precious Blood.

SMITH.

William Smith, for many years a widely known farmer and huckster of Whitley county, died very suddenly Saturday at his home in Aboit township from heart disease. Mr. Smith was 72 years of age, born in Whitley county, and resided there all his life until four years ago, when he located in Allen county, near Dunfee.

He had been complaining of not feeling well for several days, but retired Friday night apparently in no more serious condition. Early Saturday morning his wife was aroused by a slight movement upon the part of her husband, and going to his bedside found that death had claimed him. Mr. Smith was a striking character, standing six feet and four inches in height, and was highly respected. Surviving are the widow and the following children: Samuel and William Smith, Mrs. Elizabeth Demoney, Mrs. Nancy Jones and Mrs. Jennie Rouch, of Whitley county, and Eldon and the Misses' Nettie, Ethel and Anna Smith, of Allen county.

FUNERAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Walda.—Funeral services of Walter A. Walda will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 1301 Erie street, and at 2:30 from St. Paul's Lutheran church.

NEW RUSSIAN JOB.

Consul General W. R. Holloway reports from St. Petersburg, November 29, 1902, that the messenger of the government has just published an ukase of the emperor, dated November 7 (20), creating a new office, under the title of "the central administration of navigation and commercial ports." This will have control of all matters connected with the navigation of rivers and commercial navigation in general, as well as control of commercial ports heretofore under the minister of finance. It will also control all seaports heretofore under the management of the minister of ways and communications. The Grand Duke Alexander Mikhailovitch is appointed chief manager.

January Clearance Sale Throughout the Store

No thought of profit now—real value and cost are little considered. Our aim is to make a thorough clearance. We are determined to keep our stock clean and maintain the high character of our merchandise. This is our first season in Fort Wayne. We bought many beautiful Pattern Hats and novelties, consequently the assortments are quite generous—of no less note are the extremely low prices. This is a one-price cash millinery store—a rather uncommon thing; you don't have to pay for those who do not pay. Other high expenses are eliminated from our business, which reduces the cost one-third below competition. Now we offer an additional 25 per cent. discount off of the already reduced prices of last month—25 per cent. discount on all goods in our store.

Sharp Reductions in Pattern Hats

Every piece of headwear for women and children, regardless of style or cost, has been marked down—in many instances you buy the Trimmed Hat for less than the trimmings can be secured.

Trimmed Hats

in various styles and color combinations—formerly sold for $7.50, $10, up to $15—now any one in the assortment for $5.

Pattern Hats

Three of our fine ones—exclusive styles—all of our other Pattern Hats have been sold, but for some reason these beauties linger—they are made of the finest material, have a style all their own. It's a lucky woman who gets one—at $9.00

Untrimmed Hats, black, white and all colors, in the leading shapes, go at....50c

in plain and assorted colors, mostly 50c values, some better —now 25c

of silk, tucked and shirred, trimmed with fur—the prettiest we have seen this season—white, pink, light blue and red—$5, $3, $1.50 ones now $2.25, $1.50 and 75c.

Plushes and Fancy Velvets

These are foreign goods and sold from $1.50 to $4.50 a yard —in the newest shades and color combinations—we do this to be rid of them the season they are bought. They are on sale at, a yard.....50c

We want to emphasize once more that everything will be found exactly as represented and under no circumstances will we sell goods that are not trustworthy.
